REQUIRE LONG TIME FOR RAIL MERGER PLAN

Proposal For Five Big Systems In East Meets With General Approval
LOOK FOR CHANGES
New Arrangement Is Intended To Maintain Competition Among Roads

Washington—(CFA)—Railway consolidation, which has for seven years been under consideration by the Interstate Commerce commission, at last has been developed into a concrete plan.
By act of congress, the Interstate Commerce commission has final authority but each railroad affected by the plan has the right to petition for modification and the commission must consider any petition. It may take a year or more before all the hearings on any dissent are held. Also there are numerous questions involving terminal properties which have to be settled.
The important fact is, however, that the commission has announced its plan that any railroad or group of railroads which is ready to go ahead may do so irrespective of hesitancy on the part of a railroad or another group or system. In other words the plan need not be put into effect all at once but can be gradually established.
The plan for five big systems in the eastern territory corresponds pretty generally with the wishes of most railroad men, though a six system plan had been submitted.
KEEP UP COMPETITION
The new arrangements, aims to preserve competition as far as possible in the public interest. The commission's opinion of the acquisition of inter-system ownership through holding companies, and carriers are warned that in submitting their proposals to consolidation in accordance with the plan they must observe this requirement.
No mention is made of water carriers but where ship lines are already owned by railroads they will be considered as a part of the particular system in question. Dissenting opinions on the particular parts of the plan will be forthcoming but today's announcement is the basis on which application for modification must be formally made.
Unification has been held for many years to be the necessary objective of American transportation in order that the freight facilities of American railroads might be conceivably increased and expenses diminished.
The railroad men have warned against expectations of lower freight rates but the government on the other hand through the recapitulation

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT ON MANAGER FORM ELECTION
A special meeting of the common council will be held this evening at the city hall to consider calling a special election to vote on adoption of the manager form of government. Petitions asking for a special election have been filed with the city clerk.
It is probable the meeting will start at 7:30.

Menasha Man Kills Himself With Shotgun

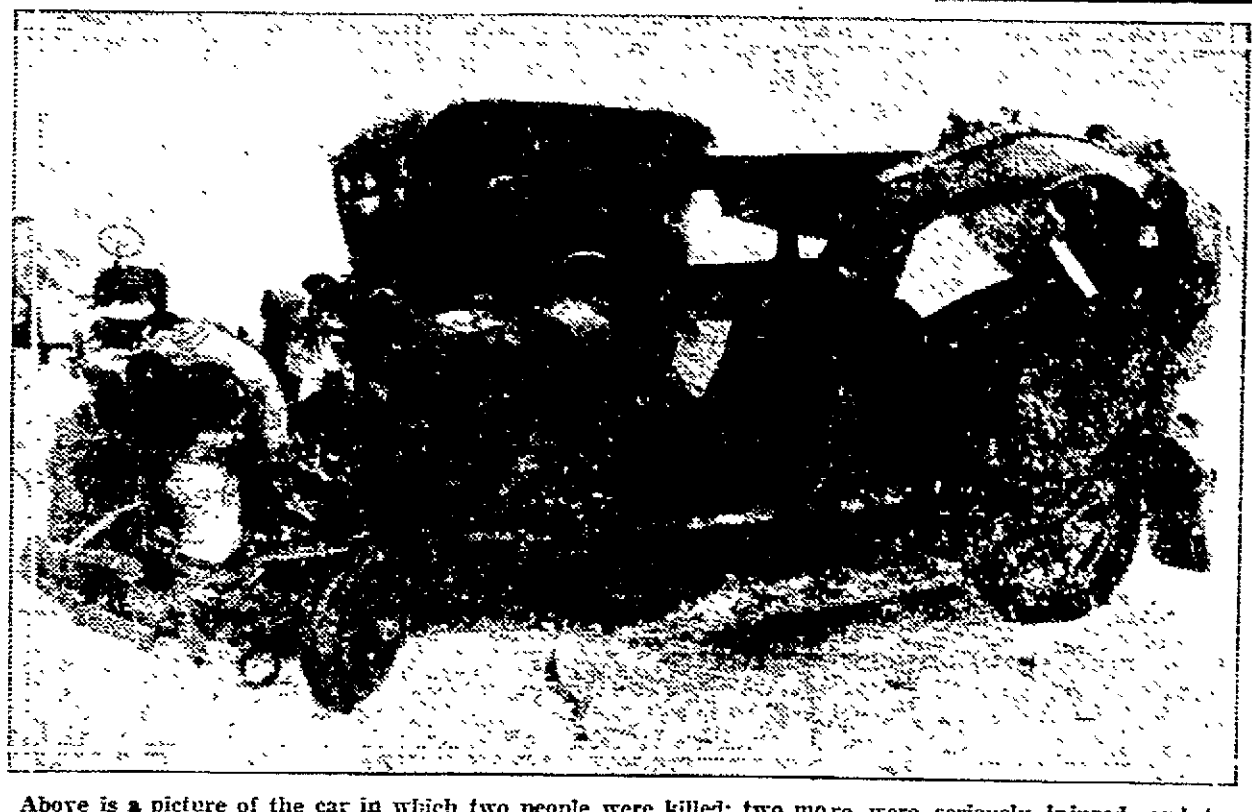

Menasha—Inserting the muzzle of a sawed-off shotgun in his mouth, Roman Gazecki, 62, 108 Madison-st., shot and killed himself Sunday noon in the bedroom of his home here.
Mrs. Gazecki and a son, Frank, found the body in bed when they returned home from church.
There will be no inquest, according to Frank Keefe, district attorney of Winnebago. Following a conference with James Lyman, police chief, he announced that it was a plain case of suicide.
The body was taken to the Menasha Furniture Co. funeral home Sunday.
Gazecki, it was said, had been in ill health for some time.
The discharge had set fire to the bed clothing, which was in a mass of flames when the family entered the house. Frank Gazecki, 25, stepped on the body from the flames, and then turned in an alarm to the fire department. Firemen carried the burning clothes outside, and no damage was done to the house.
Gazecki had been a resident of Menasha for 35 years. He was born in Germany and came to Menasha when a young man. He was a wagon maker by trade and for many years made all the wagons used by the Menasha-Woodward-Wash. corporation, where he was employed. The shotgun found near his body was one which had been in his possession for several years. He had shortened it because of a damaged muzzle. His last appearance in public was at the hearing of property owners at the council meeting a week ago with reference to the proposed new alley. He was accompanied by Mrs. Gazecki.
He is survived by nine children, Joseph, Frank, and Philip, Menasha; Mrs. E. E. McDowell, Burr, S. D.; Eleanor Gazecki, New York City; Edward, Tacoma, Wash.; Mrs. Walter Warden, Two Rivers; and Mrs. Louis Greener and Leonard Gazecki, Chicago. He was a member of St. John church and Kosciuszko society.

MAY RETURN TO IOWA OF OWN ACCORD

Hancock Businessmen Sign His Bond For Appearance In Court Jan. 7

Wautoma—(C)—Surrendering to authorities here to answer fraud charges laid against him in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Elmer S. Huckins, head of a business enterprise said to pay 25 and 52 per cent dividends, today waived preliminary examination and was held on $5,000 bond to insure his appearance here Jan. 7.
Huckins "may or may not" fight extradition to Iowa, R. S. Miller, Huckins' attorney of Cedar Rapids, said after the hearing. He had previously intimated that his client would make no effort to balk removal to Cedar Rapids where two "investors" are suing him for more than $70,000 which they insist the financial "wizard" has refused to pay back. They began suit against Huckins when his bank at Hancock, Wis., refused to honor notes the latter had given.
Huckins, smiling and affable as he walked up the courthouse steps, told newspaper photographers to "get it good, boys." When reporters sought to interview him, Huckins merely said he was "not nearly so hard-boiled as represented."
INVESTORS SIGN BOND
Six Hancock business men and the president of the bank signed Huckins' bond. Some of them are investors in the mysterious Huckins' enterprise while others are friends who have signified their faith in the leading citizen of the town.
Huckins appeared with his attorney and E. J. Courtney, superintendent of the "Huckins' estate" at Hancock. Many townspeople were on hand to see "52 Per Cent Huckins" and to witness the proceedings.
Huckins disappeared more than a week ago after the fraud charges were laid against him. Today it was said he had been visiting relatives "in an adjoining county" but neither Huckins nor his attorney would say exactly where he had been. Huckins left for Hancock after the proceedings had been completed.
Several months ago Huckins surrendered to postal inspectors to answer a charge of attempting to use the mails to defraud. The case was dismissed, however, when the district attorney failed to prove that Huckins was not in the cigar business. Huckins has told investors that he was in that business although leading cigar manufacturers said they did not know him.
Huckins has repeatedly refused to divulge the nature of his enterprise and it was not until two Cedar Rapids investors were refused the return of their investment that Huckins' financial activities were ordered examined in court. His son and associate, George Huckins of Cedar Rapids, was arrested in Excelsior Springs, Mo. last week.

That is What Remains of Car After Fatal Crash

Above is a picture of the car in which two people were killed; two more were seriously injured, and two other received minor injuries shortly before midnight Saturday on Highway 41, just east of Appleton. The car, driven by Oscar Hedberg, one of the persons killed, and a big twin-motored bus of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company collided. The party of six people in Hedberg's car were on their way to Little Chute to take Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Vanden Putten to their home. Mrs. Vanden Putten was killed and her husband was seriously hurt.

Burke's Gun Was Used In Gang Killing

Markings On Bullets Identical To Those In St. Valentine Massacre

Chicago—(C)—Fred Burke, fugitive gunman, was named by a coroner's jury today as one of the executioners of the seven Moran gangsters shot down in a N. Clark-st. garage last St. Valentine day.
Major Goddard made his announcement in testifying before the coroner's jury of six prominent Chicago men recovered by Coroner Herman N. Engstrom today to hear the latest development in the 10 months investigation of Chicago's most spectacular gang murders.
The ballistics expert said he fired 25 bullets from the weapons brought here from the St. Joseph bungalow after Burke had shot to death a traffic policeman in an argument a week ago.
He pronounced the peculiar riflings on the lead noses of the bullets and the ejected block markings on the shells identical.
The testimony was regarded as a definite link in the evidence connecting Burke with the massacre of seven gangsters in a Clark-st. garage last St. Valentine day. Burke was listed last spring as one of 17 men "wanted" in the case and was reported to have been identified by witnesses as one of the executioners.
His identification as the half-brother of the St. Joseph policeman a week ago and the finding of his cache of stolen funds from a Wisconsin bank and his arrest led to the resumption of the inquiry into the Moran killings.

Passenger Trains Collide In Louisiana And In Texas

Firemen Of Texas Limited Believed Dead—Six Others Hurt In 2 wrecks

New Orleans—(C)—Two passenger trains, the Louisiana Limited running from Shreveport to New Orleans, and the Texas Limited, from Houston to New Orleans, ran together today at Avondale, 15 miles north of New Orleans, plinned a fireman under his engine and scalded an engineer. Only the engines left the track and no passengers were reported hurt.
Both trains were running late. At the crossing at Avondale the Texas and Pacific train from Shreveport failed to stop and struck the Southern Pacific Texas limited locomotive midway, throwing it off the track.
E. L. Pittman, fireman of the Texas Limited, was buried under his engine and was believed by rescue workers to be dead. Workmen were digging in relays an hour after the wreck in an effort to reach him. He was out of sight and had made no sound since the engine turned over.
Mike Foster, engineer of the Texas train, was scalded and he was taken to a New Orleans hospital in a serious condition.
FIVE HURT IN KANSAS
Gorham, Kas.—(C)—Five persons were injured, several seriously, when two Union Pacific passenger trains collided a mile east of here this morning. All of the injured were reported to be transient, no passengers being hurt. The injured were removed to Hays, Kas.
The collision occurred at a signal near an oil refinery, the locomotives of passenger train No. 123, east-bound and passenger train No. 21, west-bound, striking head on. Both trains were enroute Kansas City and Denver.

SINO-RUSSIAN STRIFE ENDED BY PROTOCOL

Peace Between Mukden And Moscow Believed Binding On All China

Moscow—(C)—Moscow and Mukden have made their peace and have signed a protocol fixing future relations between the Soviet Russian government and the Manchurian Chinese provincial government.
A foreign commissariat announcement said the Soviet plenipotentiary, M. Simonovsky, and Tsai Yun-shien, the Chinese representative of the Mukden government, signed at Khabarovsk, Siberia, a protocol which restores the status quo ante on the disputed Chinese Eastern railway and mutually immediately restores consular and commercial organizations in the two countries.
Formal resumption of relations will not be arranged until a further conference is held Jan. 25, but meanwhile all troops will be withdrawn from the Russian and Manchurian borders, all persons arrested in connection with the railway dispute will be released, and white guard Russians will be disarmed and deported by the Chinese.
The new Russian general manager of the railway and his assistant will leave soon for Harbin to assume their duties in connection with the joint operation of the railroad as outlined in the Peking-Mukden agreements of 1924.
ENDS SIX-MONTH CONFLICT
The protocol, it appeared, ends a six-months chapter of violent conflict between China and Russia, growing out of Manchurian seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway, which traverses that province, last spring. The Russians, unable to regain the road to a mutual management scheme, sent troops to the border and recently completely routed the Chinese and took possession of western Manchuria.
A note from Secretary Stimson reminding Soviet Russia of its obligations under the Kellogg pact was rebuffed by the Moscow government.

INTO BIG BUS ON HIGHWAY 41

Oscar Hedberg And Mrs. Rudolph Vanden Putten Lose Their Lives

FOUR GO TO HOSPITAL Frost On Windshield Of Car Is Blamed For Saturday Night Tragedy

Oscar Hedberg, 25, an engineer living at 124 N. State-st. and Mrs. Rudolph Vanden Putten, 23, Little Chute, the mother of two small children, when he met for the first time Saturday night, were killed shortly after 1:30 Saturday night when Hedberg's car collided with a huge load of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. at Highway 41, just outside the city limits of Appleton. Four other persons in the car were injured but non-critically. They are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dreyer, 1320 W. Franklin-st., Miss Anna Novakowski, Menasha, and Mr. Vanden Putten.
Mr. Vanden Putten's injuries had not been definitely determined at noon today. Miss Novakowski's injuries are serious but not necessarily critical and the other two will be able to leave the hospital in a day or two.
Hedberg was dead when his body was removed from the wreckage and Mrs. Vanden Putten died as she was taken into the hospital. All the rest were unconscious except Mr. Dreyer and he was in a dazed condition when he reached the hospital.
FROST ON WINDSHIELD
Dreyer and other occupants of the car who were able to talk about the accident yesterday and today believe that Hedberg's vision of the road ahead was obscured by frost on his windshield. One of the windows in the sedan was left partially open but the frost collected despite this precaution and just a few minutes before the tragedy the car was stopped while glycerine was applied to the windshield. The glass clouded up again, however, and Hedberg had just said he was going to stop again when he crashed into the bus.
Police said the bus driven by Raymond McCabe, was partially off the concrete when it was rammed in the front corner by the Hedberg machine. The stout sides of the bus were crumpled in sufficiently to pin McCabe in his seat and wreck the instrument board but he retained control of his huge machine and guided it through the ditch, against a telephone pole which was snapped off, and finally stopped it between 150 and 200 feet from where the car was hit. The one passenger in the car was uninjured except for a shaking up as the machine went into the ditch. McCabe suffered a slight injury to his leg.
The Hedberg car is a complete wreck. It was doubled up into a twisted piece of metal and parts were strewn along the road for almost 1/4 mile. All of the occupants remained in the car, however, and it was necessary to pry the wreckage apart to get out two of them.
The automobile party started from the Dreyer home where Hedberg had gone to call for Mrs. Novakowski. At the Dreyer home he found Mr. and Mrs. Vanden Putten who were returning there and about 11:30, when the Vanden Puttens suggested it was time to go home, Hedberg volunteered to take them, and invited the Dreyers to accompany him. Mr. Dreyer and Mrs. Vanden Putten had arrived at the Dreyer home about 12:00.
The weather was cold and a few minutes after the six people got in the car, the windshield was frozen. The car was stopped and glycerine applied but in another minute or two frost again shut off vision and then there was the crash on a straight stretch of highway.
William Burns, Jr., 515 E. Pacific-st., and Otto Lutzow, Green Bay, were in cars near the accident, assisting in removing the dead and injured from the wreckage. Police were called and the injured were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital in the police car.
HOLD FUNERALS TUESDAY
Hedberg is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hedberg, 1022 N. State-st., Green Bay, and Edwin of Fort Atkinson, Wis. Mrs. Dreyer, all of this city, three sisters, Mrs. Axel Solis, Mrs. Julius Kleinschmidt, and Miss Valborg Hedberg of this city.
He served with the 32nd division as a machine gunner sergeant during the World war, and after his return attended Stout Institute, Menomonie. He taught in the Oconto public schools for two years, and then became an employee at the Kimberly-Clark Co. mill, Kimberly.
Funeral services will be held at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon from the home and at 2 o'clock at First English Lutheran church, the Rev. F. C. Reuther officiating. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery. The body was taken from the Wichman Fu-

MINNEAPOLIS MAN TO HEAD GRAIN GROUP

Washington—(C)—The National Grain corporation has informed the farm board that William Kellogg of Minneapolis, well known grain man, has been selected as manager of the corporation and will assume duties on Jan. 1.
The National Grain corporation, which is a national sales agency, for all the grain cooperative association, already has been buying wheat on the Chicago Grain exchange, a procedure which chairman Legge said today was approved by the farm board.
The corporation, he said, had found that there was more space available for storage than had been expected, and also that some of the wheat not being bought would go into the export trade, which the corporation expects will soon increase.
Since the organization of the corporation it has been under the active management of a committee appointed by the board of directors. W. C. Lonsdale, Kansas City grain dealer, had been previously offered the post as manager of the grain corporation but he refused it, saying that he was out of sympathy with the board's grain marketing policies.

Hong Kong, China—(C)—The Chinese steamer Lee Cheong, with her Chinese officers and crew and 250 Chinese passengers, including many women and children, sank late Saturday night with practically all on board.

Two steamers clinging to wreckage were picked up yesterday and brought here.

Federal Agents Must Quit Lawlessness, Judge Says

Los Angeles—(C)—That President Hoover's law enforcement commission has concluded that two major problems, prohibition enforcement and "governmental lawlessness," demand immediate settlement was disclosed here last night by Federal Judge Paul H. McCormick, a member of the commission.
Judge McCormick asserted the enforcement of governmental lawlessness would result in a guarantee of constitutional rights to citizens.
Explaining that he was speaking as an individual and not officially for the commission, Judge McCormick asserted that the invasion and search of private dwellings without warrants was one of the outstanding evils of present day enforcement methods.
"It is a gross misuse and denial of the constitutional rights of citizens," he said, "and a menace to life and liberty."
"A man's home is his castle and the practice of entering it, in the cause of prohibition enforcement, without recourse to legal procedure, should be abolished. Third degree methods, as indulged in today, are wrong."
The evils of governmental procedure also were scored by Judge McCormick. The machinery of the law is very antiquated, he said, and needs more up-to-date manipulation.
The work of the commission has been well outlined, Judge McCormick said, and the various matters within its province have been assigned to an investigating committee for inquiry and report. This committee is to convene in the spring of 1930.
Judge McCormick made his announcement upon his return here from the east, where he spent four months in connection with the work of the commission. During that time he also sat on the federal bench in New York. He created considerable attention by decreeing the wholesale padlocking of New York night clubs where prohibition law violations had been uncovered.
The announcement served to partially lift the veil of silence which has surrounded the work of the commission thus far.

Keyes Says New Evidence In Murder Only Politics

Los Angeles—(C)—The statement of former Gov. Friend W. Richardson that he possessed proof that William Desmond Taylor, noted motion picture director who was mysteriously slain seven years ago, was killed by a motion picture actress, was characterized today by former District Attorney Isa Keyes as "political ammunition."
Soon after Richardson made the announcement to San Francisco newspapers Saturday a statement was issued by Byron Fitts, present district attorney, in which the prosecutor said only one link remained to be forced in order to perfect his case against the slayer.
Keyes, who is under conviction on a bribery charge, asserted in the county jail yesterday that "Richardson is shaking the bones of Taylor for political purposes."
Both Richardson and Fitts have been mentioned as possible candidates for the Republican nomination for governor. Richardson has intimated that either he or Fitts would announce a candidacy soon.
Keyes, who is recovering from an operation in the jail hospital, characterized the statement as "political ammunition."

Try To Determine Cause Of Giant Plane's Smashup

1 KILLED, 2 INJURED, 14 ESCAPE HARM

Wreck Results When Pilot Tries To Land Huge Ship For Night

Indianapolis, Ind. (AP)—Officials of the Transcontinental air transport line began an investigation here today in an effort to establish the cause of the crash of one of its bi-motored passenger planes here early last night which brought death to one passenger and serious injury to two others.

D. C. Law, 47, Philadelphia, Pa., member of the technical staff of Warner Brothers, Inc., motion picture producers, was fatally injured. His left foot was crushed, several ribs broken and he suffered internal injuries.

C. Mahlon Kline also of Philadelphia, president of Smith, Kline, French and Company, wholesale druggist, suffered a broken right arm and severe head bruises. The other injured was Miss Mary Pearson, secretary to Donald Barlow, assistant manager of the T. A. T. She suffered from a sprained back and shock.

C. F. Devore, Indianapolis manager of the T. A. T., began the investigation. He was to be assisted by a representative from St. Louis. The Indianapolis office is in the St. Louis division.

J. L. Ridgley, superintendent of the Indianapolis division of the Pennsylvania railroad, said that statements would be taken by Devore from the pilot, courier and witnesses to the crash.

CONVULSES INQUIRY

Meanwhile an official investigation launched by Coroner C. H. Keever last night continued today. An inquest was to be held, when members of the crew were to testify and tell what they believed to be the cause of the crash.

The plane flying eastward from St. Louis to Columbus, Ohio, reached Stout field, Mass., airport shortly after 5 o'clock, flying a half hour behind schedule. Pilot D. W. Burford of Columbus, planned to land the ship and remain overnight, since darkness and heavy snowfall made travel dangerous.

He circled the field and as he attempted to set the ship down it was thought that he misjudged the speed of the ship, and that added to the slick icy condition of the field, caused the plane to coast to the extreme end of the landing area. The ship struck a five foot stump, the impact ripping through the fuselage, breaking the left longeron, a main piece of the framework.

Law was injured in the first crash of the fuselage against the stump. The left landing gear strut, supporting the wheel, also was torn off, allowing the wheel to drop. The stump, ramming through the thin metal of the cabin, is thought to have struck Law, first pinning him against one of the iron seats, which were torn from the shagbushings. Law, bleeding profusely, was hurried onto the lap of Russell McFarlane, another passenger.

MOTORS STILL RUNNING

With the motors of the giant plane still roaring, the plane came to earth, rebounding and accidentally releasing flare which led spectators to believe the ship had caught fire. The plane did not overturn, but skidded crazily down the field on the base of the cabin, finally coming to a stop near a haystack.

Law died on the way to a hospital, where the two injured were treated. The other eight of the 11 passengers who were uninjured were: H. Leighton Patterson, N. J.; J. E. Lunsman, Oakland, Calif.; Russell McFarlane, Washington; Miss Dorothy O'Brien, Brooklyn, N. Y.; W. S. Edwards, Brooklyn, N. Y.; J. J. Welsh, Passaic, N. J.; M. Stearns, Sharon, Conn.; and John R. Brown, Pittsburg, Pa.

The assistant pilot was H. J. Zimmerman, Columbus, Ohio. R. G. Klemmeyer, 23, was courier. They also escaped injury.

The passengers, most of whom were holiday travelers, resumed their journey by train last night.

BALDWIN PROPERTIES OFFERED FOR SALE

Los Angeles (AP)—Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, daughter of the late E. J. "Jack" Baldwin, today announced that her vast property holdings in southern California, valued at between $20,000,000 and $35,000,000, soon are to be offered for sale in the open market, and that she will devote the future to music and travel.

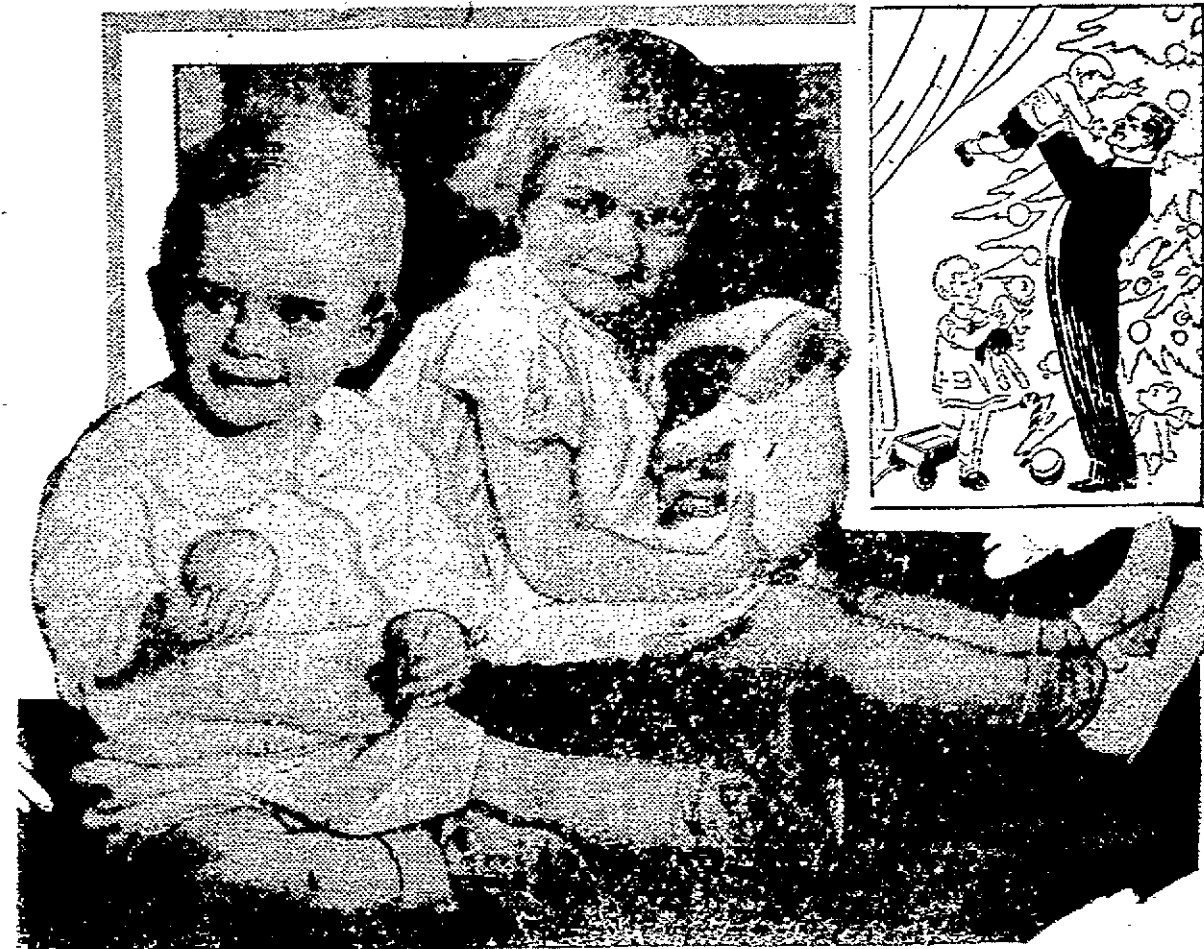

Virtually all preliminary details for the sale have been completed, Mrs. Baldwin said, and most of the property is expected to be disposed of by next June 1. On that date Mrs. Baldwin will leave southern California and take up her permanent residence at her Lake Tahoe estate in the northern part of the state. She will divide her time, she said, between Lake Tahoe and Europe.

Included in the properties to be sold is the Arcadia ranch near Los Angeles where Mrs. Baldwin's father made his home and raised and trained many of the fine horses for which he was famed. Other properties to be sold are the Baldwin Hills oil field near Culver city, Calif., the ranch properties at LaCienega and the Baldwin home place near Arcadia.

Real Old Style Jubilant Christmas Is Planned By Hoovers This Year

Christmas will be a jolly time at the White House this year, what with the shouts of Herbert Hoover III (left) and Peggy Ann Hoover (right).

By SUE McNAMARA
Washington (AP)—An old-fashioned Christmas such as has not been celebrated in the White House in many administrations will make the holidays this year radiant.

Children, for the first time in years, will gather round the brightly-lit tree and pull presents out of stockings in the early Christmas dawn.

Little Herbert Hoover III will clutch his woolly dog with the same glee as other youngsters in millions of homes all over the land. A doll in a pink or blue bonnet will bring smiles to the face of little Peggy Ann Hoover, aged 3, who is her grandfather's pride.

For the White House "children" will be home for the holidays—Herbert Hoover Jr., his wife and two children from California, Allan Hoover from Harvard business school and the two children of Mrs. J. H. Large, sister of Mrs. Hoover. Both are in their teens.

Some of the old neighbors from the former S street home of the Hoovers may be invited in with their children for Christmas eve or at some time during Christmas day.

The homing spirit which draws wanderers from far corners of the earth will be symbolized in the lights shining from the White House windows the night before Christmas. President and Mrs. Hoover have always made much of the day, no matter in what distant land they have been. For the President, especially, the sentiment of the day holds powerful appeal.

This, coupled with the presence of children in rooms which have heretofore been holiday-festive, but lacking the shouts and laughter, will make Christmas this year a real one. The favorite White House dogs—Pat, a big Irish wolf-hound belonging to Mrs. Hoover, and Yukon, a white husky with blue eyes, will add their own gruff Christmas greetings to the merry-making.

There, probably will be two trees—one in the east room for general callers to see and the other in the private quarters of the President and his family on the floor above. Church on Christmas morning, a noon dinner and a quiet afternoon with a few old friends will complete the day.

The Coolidges always had a small tree decorated with stars and angels in the east room. There was no need of a special family tree. There was only John to come home from college and he was a little beyond the family tree age.

ROAD COMMITTEE OPENS BIDS ON WINTER OIL

Bids on oil for use in county trucks during the winter were opened by the highway committee at a meeting Monday morning at the courthouse. The committee received bids on oil in drum and also carload lots, and these were being tabulated. Each of the companies which submitted a bid was given five minutes before the committee to discuss the value of his oil, and most of the morning was taken up in hearing these short talks. The committee was to reconvene Monday afternoon.

JAPAN'S DIET IS CERTAIN TO BE DISSOLVED

Only Question Is Whether It Will Quit Before Or After New Year

Tokio (AP)—The fifty-seventh session of the imperial diet, Japan's national parliament, convened today.

Although the government has made no announcement on the matter, the consensus of able political observers was that dissolution was certain, the only question being as to whether it will come before or after the New Year recess, Dec. 25 to Jan. 2.

Dissolution and a new election of members of the house of representatives is considered inevitable because the Minseitō, the party supporting Premier Yuko Hamaguchi's ministry, is in the minority in that chamber and must appeal to the country to get a majority. Despite a strong feeling in the party ranks that the sooner the diet comes the better, Minseitō leaders have advised the premier to withhold dissolution until January, in order that the premier, foreign minister and finance minister may make their annual statements of policy before the two houses and also to permit the opposition to make interpellations on general policy.

The Minseitō ministry came into power July 2, 1929, when the Seiyukai cabinet of the late Baron Gicchi Tanaka fell, destroyed by disapproval in quarters near the throne of its blunders in connection with the ratification of the Kellogg treaty and the investigation of the assassination of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin at Mukden. Despite the change in cabinets the Seiyukai retained its majority in the lower house, where seats are now distributed as follows: Minseitō (government) 172; Seiyukai (opposition) 149; Proletarian parties 7; Business men's party 3; Meiseikai 4; Kakushin club 1; Independents 22 and Vacancies 17. Total 465.

Minseitō leaders are confident of their ability to gain a clear majority, or 234 seats, by appealing to the country. They allege that in the last election, Feb. 20, 1928, held under the Seiyukai regime, widespread official pressure was brought to bear in favor of the government party. They depend on the irregularity attending to the last cabinet and on the effect of recently disclosed scandals involving Heikichi Ogawa, minister of railways, in the Tanaka cabinet and other high officials of the regime, to swing the country in their favor. They maintain that Premier Hamaguchi's policies of national thrift and economic reconstruction have found favor with the nation. A national election must be held

COLD, NOT OFFICERS, DESTROYS MASH IN OZARK HILL REGION

Miner, Mo. (AP)—Walls of genuine anguish are coming in from the Ozark hills in the wake of the sudden cold snap of the last four days. For many, all the joy has been taken out of the Christmas season. To make a long story short, this Christmas will be remembered as "the year the mash froze."

Manufacturers of the illicit beverage, so the report is, had just "hid out" their mixtures of sugar, corn and yeast, or whatever the ingredients may be, when the mercury skidded dizzily to zero or thereabouts.

Thousands of gallons of mash have been "killed" by freezing and the majority of the makers "plumb ruined," to use their own expression.

WEATHERMAN PREDICTS FAIR, WARMER WEATHER

Fair and warmer is the weatherman's offering for this vicinity for the next 24 hours.

Due to a rise by Monday night, skies will be cloudy Tuesday morning and snow is probable, but fair weather will prevail by Christmas day. Snow is predicted for the upper and lower lake regions for the next 24 hours, and the mercury is due for a slight drop, the weatherman says. Winds are shifting in the west and northwest. At 6 o'clock Monday morning the mercury registered 20 degrees above zero, while at noon the mercury registered 30 degrees above zero.

Within 30 days of the date of a parliamentary dissolution, which means it will come in January or late February, depending on whether the Hamaguchi cabinet decides to wait until after the New Year recess before asking the emperor to dissolve the diet. A new session must be convened within five months of the dissolution.

Today's session was the first time Premier Hamaguchi and his ministers have faced the legislature. The two chambers—house of peers, which is hereditary and appointive and house of representatives, elective—will meet only for organization. There will be no sessions on Dec. 24 and 25. Not because the latter is Christmas, which is no holiday in non-Christian Japan, but because it is the third anniversary of the death of the late Emperor J. Taisho. Formal opening ceremonies, with the emperor present, will take place Dec. 26. It is then that many political observers believe the ax of dissolution will fall. If not, the houses reconvene on Jan. 21 to hear the ministers' statements of policy.

Pope Points Out Blessings Bestowed In Jubilee Year

Vatican City (AP)—Pope Pius XI today issued an encyclical, his second sacerdotal jubilee, and the "Catholic Auction" organization.

The encyclical recounted numerous reasons why the pontiff's jubilee year had been crowned with joy and consolidation, among them solution of the so-called Roman question and the gladness with which the tidings had been received throughout the world and in Italy, especially.

The pope mentioned other concordants concluded with Portugal, Rumania and Prussia, the improvement of conditions in Mexico and said that Oriental church were becoming ever closer to Rome. He also mentioned the conference of the Rumanian episcopacy in Rome, the election of foreign ecclesiastical colleges and the institution of various new buildings.

The pope put in encyclical form his remarks in the allocutio. of Dec. 15 ended with the formal proclamation of the jubilee year until the end of June, 1930, and imparted the apostolic benediction to all bishops—to whom encyclicals are always addressed—and their flocks.

Today's encyclical was entitled "Quinquagesimo Anno" from the first two words of its Latin text meaning "in the fiftieth year." Last Thursday's encyclical was known as "Mien's Nostra" meaning "Our Mind."

After having attributed to God so great a number of benefits, the pope continued: "We sincerely thank also those whom He adopted in His benign providence as instruments for bestowing so many favors, namely the heads of governments who manifested their benevolent deference towards us presenting us with precious gifts, and rendering more easy the coming of their citizens to us."

May Your Christmas Be Most Merry and the New Year a Prosperous One

DRY CLEANING and PRESSING
215-219 N. Appleton St.
APPLETON, WIS.

"IN days of old when knights were bold and barons held their sway".....ye old time Yule log burned right merrily in the great beamed castle hall and cast its mellow rays of Christmas cheer the length and breadth of the majestic room.

Now-a-days the Christmas season marks the gathering of the merry holiday in the cozy living room where Christmas cheer is enjoyed by all and not alone knights and barons as in times gone by. For there is less work to be done, more pleasure in doing it, more time for every member of the family to take part in the merry making.

May the most generous blessings of any year be yours this Christmastide. So far as the servants of gas, electricity and transportation can contribute toward keeping the days happy, this will indeed be your merriest Christmas.

PEAK IS REACHED IN OUTGOING MAIL

Mail Clerks Expect Biggest Day of Incoming Mail On Monday

The peak in volume of outgoing mail was reached at the postoffice Saturday, according to William H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster. The peak of the incoming rush was expected Monday, even though the carriers, under special orders, made a delivery of mail to the residential district Sunday. Despite the rush of mail which arrived Saturday the special parcel post delivery system made a complete delivery on every route in the city Sunday. There are six special and four regular trucks delivering parcel packages.

Evidence that the public at least in part, mailed early this year is given by the daily figures from the cancelling machine. The rush started last Wednesday when 49,175 letters and cards were put through the machine. On Thursday the total jumped to 72,589 and on Friday to 77,480. On Saturday there was a slight decrease to 73,992 while on Sunday the total fell to 17,490.

While individually these figures do not reach the highest day last year, Mr. Zuehlke pointed out that collectively they far surpass the figures for the same period last year, showing that the mailing this year was over a period of time rather than concentrated in one or two days.

Dry Leaders — They Look Alike

Here's Perfect Plan To Keep Ice From Windshield

A Sheboygan man, J. E. Hamachek, claims the honor of inventing a simple method of keeping windshields free of icy-coatings during sleet storms but he will find his claim contested because there are several car drivers in this vicinity who thought of the same scheme and put it to effective use during the recent sleety weather.

The method used by Mr. Hamachek, and these other drivers as well, is to simply loosen the hood and insert a piece of wood or anything else that will serve the purpose, under each side of the windshield. This will permit a constant flow of warm air from the motor and it will keep the windshield clear all the time. An automatic windshield wiper aids in this system by removing the melting water which results from the surplus ice.

This arrangement has been tried by many motorists and it has been found to work perfectly.

BLACK SMARTEST FOR EVENING WEAR

Always Looks Well Despite Popularity Of Giddy Colors

BY AILEEN LAMONT
Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press
New York. — Nothing is smarter for evening than black, which in spite of giddy colors still retains its vogue. Ivory, oyster, cream and all the off-white shades are equally fashionable. But the latest colors for spring evenings include tones of henna, peach pink, clear blues in marvelous shadings, and clear greens.
Pink, which is combined with black for evening, is also being combined with blacks, browns, and blues for daytime wear.

Somebody must have been concentrating in a big way upon hand-bags for never were these accessories more smart and beautiful. There are afternoon and evening bags of satin embroidered with chenille in floral designs. There are bags for the tailored costume of tailored tan antelope with a tan calf trim; or of black calf, with an inset trim of black antelope consisting of two intersecting round disks and another disk posed at a far corner. Clever?

Designers of costume jewelry are doing more and more delightful things with gold filigree. There is one necklace of "sun-tan" gold in an intricate design composed of little, thin medallions each of which is a masterpiece in itself. The necklace ends with a slightly larger medallion in front, a small emerald at the center of the medallion. Another necklace is of gold filigree and crystal. It expands into three strands terminating in a fringe of crystals and seed pearls.

FARMERS WARNED OF

"HUNGRY LAWYERS"

Madison—(AP)—"Hungry lawyers" will victimize Wisconsin farmers if they don't watch out, under the state humane law, George P. Comings humane officer for the state department of agriculture and markets said today.

During the severe weather in November a large number of young calves in shipment were caught in transit in unprotected freight cars, he said. The Milwaukee district attorney and humane agent sent letters to the shippers calling attention to this infraction of the law and warning that in case of repetition prosecution would follow.

"In the cold snap of thanksgiving week, more unprotected calves came to the Milwaukee market. Warrants were served on five shippers and hearing set for Dec. 12. One, a shipper for the Equity organization, appeared in Milwaukee municipal court paid his fine and costs, but the others acting on the advice of a hungry lawyer, said they would test constitutionality of the law," said Mr.
Comings.

"In plain English this means farmers will be victimized for legalness and cost of litigation, if possible, to defeat attempts trying to help them get their veal to market in the best condition possible, and so realize the best price on them."

Mr. Comings, in a letter to "brother farmers and shippers," outlined the possibilities for economic loss in the shipment of unprotected livestock, and the methods of protecting the livestock in shipment, for the economic gain of the farmers as well as for humanitarian protection.

COURT CAN'T ATTACH WAR COMPENSATION

Madison—(AP)—A disabled war veterans compensation cannot be attached by a state court to pay alimony to a divorced wife or support money to a child, Circuit Court Judge A. C. Hoppman has ruled here.

The ruling came after he had granted Mrs. Minerva Lane a divorce recently. Judge Hoppmann said he had no authority to order part of compensation received by David Lane, 26, as a veteran of the air service and now in a government hospital in Chicago, paid his wife or the three-year-old daughter of the couple.

Application for support money for the child must be made through the pension bureau, the judge said.

START REPAIR WORK ON KAUKAUNA LOCKS

Repair work on the second and fifth government locks at Kaukauna is well underway, according to A. P.
Everett, government engineer. The work on the two locks will cost approximately $33,000, $18,000 having been appropriated for work on the fifth lock, and $15,000 on the second lock.

A concrete platform is being constructed on the fifth lock to replace the old timber platform. Other changes also are being made. The second Kaukauna lock is being relin-ed with timber. A coffer dam has been constructed above the second lock.

DRY LAW VIOLATIONS CHIEF FEDERAL COUNTS

Madison—(AP)—Of the 232 arrests made through and by the United States marshal's office in Madison during 1929, violations of the federal prohibition law were responsible for 211, according to a tabulation by C.
H. Rawlinson, U. S. Marshall of the western Wisconsin district.

Violations of the federal prohibition law have rapidly increased since repeal of the Sevenson state prohibition law, according to figures compiled by Mr. Rawlinson. The western district extends from the shores of Lake Superior to Illinois and roughly follows latitude 39 for its eastern boundary and is bordered on the west by the Mississippi river. To patrol this district Mr. Rawlinson has five deputies.

ufacturing company will again do logs in early. Phone 28. adv.

Madison—(AP)—Work toward the 1930 Wisconsin state fair has already been started by the state department of agriculture and markets.

A preliminary bulletin, showing prizes offered for competitive exhibits in the educational department has been issued. The educational department of the fair will aim this year to present the "Wisconsin Idea in Education." Forty-thousand square feet of building space will be utilized to show the work of all schools from the elementary graded

BUREAU SEEKS TO RETAIN HOSPITAL

Unless Congress Authorizes
Sale, Waukesha Institution
Stays

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—The United States
Veterans' hospital at Waukesha,
Wis., will be retained by the Veterans' bureau unless Congress specifically directs its sale. Congress has made no move to authorize the bureau to dispose of the Waukesha hospital.

Confusion as to the status of the Waukesha veterans' hospital, the only Veterans' bureau hospital in Wisconsin, arose from the fact that the Veterans' bureau recommended that Congress authorize its sale in authorizing the $14,000,000 veterans' hospital program.

The bureau wanted to sell the hospitals at Waukesha, at Dwight, Ill., and at Bronx, N. Y., the House of Representatives Committee on World War Veterans' legislation refused to write into the hospitalization bill authority to sell any of these hospitals.
It is not expected that the Senate will do so.

Unless Congress specifically directs the sale of the hospital, the bureau will continue to operate it.

The new program contemplates no new hospitals in Wisconsin, but proposes one for Knoxville, Iowa. The Waukesha hospital has facilities for 8 medical cases and 5 surgical cases, according to the report of the committee.

DECEPTIVE JOURNALISM
We notice in a Chicago newspaper which is hostile to disarmament, to the world court and all other constructive engagements by the United States with other nations for the promotion of peace, a headline which reads, "British Figures Bare Drive to Sink United States Navy." The heading continues with "War of propaganda opens in London." This, together with the article which follows, is a sample of newspaper deception ceaselessly employed to prejudice Americans against foreigners. There is the same kind of journalism in Europe. The facts which it pretends to spread before the public are nine times out of ten creations of the imagination and reflect neither the policies, nor the purposes of the governments they seek to discredit.

Schemes of Great Britain to overwhelm the United States with a superior navy are phantoms of our "splendid isolationists," who have become neurotic in the phobias they entertain regarding international relations. They are responsible for most of the differences and ill will manifested between the peoples of various governments. Most of the stuff they print is propaganda, that and nothing else, and is founded on irresponsible gossip and their own exaggerated reasoning and deductions. There are politicians in Great Britain the same as here who are selfish in their international viewpoints, there are militarists and jingoes in both countries, but they do not dictate to governments headed by Ramsay MacDonalds and Herbert Hoovers.

There is no reason to question the intention of Ramsay MacDonald to deal squarely and openly with the United States and the other powers which are to assemble at London in January to consider naval disarmament. On the contrary, there is every ground for assuming that his motives are sincere and that he will in good faith execute the personal promises he has made to President Hoover and Ambassador Davies. We are amply able to protect ourselves and to see that we get a square deal. It is to be a friendly conference with friendly objectives in view. It is to convene in an atmosphere charged with a desire to escape war and promote peace.

There has been a vast change of attitude among all the powers during the last year, due to a realization that nations must be just and above board in this undertaking as well as to diplomatic achievements like the Kellogg treaty and other international engagements that have taken place. The talk to the contrary, which charges or implies conspiracies and bad faith, is mostly idle or malicious invention. It is ill-considered, unfortunate and deplorable.

CLEVELAND CHARITY
Cleveland is the biggest city that uses the Community Fund plan regularly, with apparently increasing efficiency and success. The other day that city ended its eleventh annual fund campaign with a total chest of $4,654,357.97, the largest sum ever collected in such a way, for such a purpose, anywhere in the world.

An interesting feature of this achievement is that there were 501,605 contributors to the fund, half the city's population. This year, too, 17,138 more persons gave to the fund than last year, indicating that the public is increasingly convinced of the soundness of the system.

There are critical individuals in any community who find flaws in great and successful enterprises. There are undoubtedly people in Cleveland who point out a case here and there where the welfare agencies supported by the fund seem to have fallen down on their humanitarian job. There are far more citizens who see that on the whole the welfare work of the community is better done now than ever before, that the good accomplished far outweighs occasional mistakes.

In the preceding campaigns Cleveland has raised more than $400,000,000, which was poured into helpful, necessary, humanitarian service. This year's fund results show that Clevelanders have been convinced of the usefulness and efficiency of that work.

LEGGE STANDS HIS GROUND
Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm board has issued a pointed denial of the inferences raised by officers of the United States Chamber of Commerce that he has consented to modify the board's policies in the interest of independent grain dealers, exporters and speculators. He has let it be known that he is going to conduct its operations in conformance with the purposes of the law which created it and for the benefit of agriculture. If other interests are adversely affected they will have to protect themselves as best they can. He has adopted the commendable attitude of defiance toward politics and its commercial allies which would control or negative the activities of the farm board. It is fortunate that a man of his type and character should be at its head and that he cannot be "controlled."

When the economic welfare of the country requires certain fundamental changes they should be brought about regardless of the readjustments or displacements which may be necessary. Re-establishment of the great agricultural industry on a sound and prosperous basis requires such changes. It is essential that the independence of farming shall be achieved and this means that producers shall have control over what they have to sell in its marketing. That can come about only through cooperative action and organization.

In the manufacturing, commercial and financial world this has been done. Our great trusts in all of these lines have made their participants masters of their own destiny. That is what must be attained in agriculture and Chairman Legge and his associates on the farm board have set out to do it. It was inevitable that they should come into collision with certain interests in the existing set-up. They have to meet this resistance with resolution and resourcefulness, they have to pursue their work with a single purpose and a single end, they have to hew to the line and let the chips fall where they will. If they should adopt any other course their work would be a monumental failure.

The prosperity and economic independence of the American farmer are absolutely indispensable to the progress and wellbeing of the nation. His status for some time past represents a decidedly unbalanced economy. All those forces which actively or passively stand in the way of placing him upon an equality with others must be brushed aside and permanently removed. We are sure that public opinion will support the Federal Farm board insofar as these problems have to be met and in the great work on which it has embarked.

NOISE AND BANDITRY
Health commissioner Wynne has taken New York city's anti-noise work seriously. First he found out what noise does to health by preventing sleep and upsetting nervous systems. Recently he has been investigating the possibility that noise helps to cause crime.

"I venture to say," Dr. Wynne comments, "that in the crowded sections of the city there are children who never know a moment when their ears are not bombarded by noise. In the light of what has been discovered about noise and fear reaction, it would seem that these children must be constantly screwed up to the fighting pitch. This seems especially significant to me when I consider the increase in the gangster type in the last twenty years."

The theory sounds reasonable. Kept up to fighting pitch, these youngsters develop dispositions and viewpoints that make robbery and banditry and gunplay nothing more than outlets for nervous energy, relaxation from strain, adventure that acts as a counter-irritant to the noise. Mothers and fathers know how easy it is to lose tempers when children are excessively noisy and how much more quarrelsome the children are after too exuberant play than when their rough-housing is balanced with naps or a quiet hour.

The reason pie has a bad reputation for indigestibility is that it is often taken at the end of a heavy meal when the stomach is already overloaded.

The United States government realized more than $500,000 from fur and skin sales on Pribilof and Robben Islands during the season of 1928-29.

Licorice is used in largest amounts in chewing tobacco, although it is also found extensively in pipe and cigar tobaccos.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK
New York—Their names can't be told, but that hardly matters in this story of a prominent literary couple which only lacks an O. Henry ending of the world.

For more than a year the husband has been loafing, while a reputation for scholarship goes to waste. One can almost always find him at a bar in the west forties, or chatting with convivial acquaintances at the sidewalk table of some cafe in Paris. For he is one of those men of the world.

Occasionally he writes something to keep his hand in and his services are always in demand, but the love of leisure has claimed him.

Meanwhile his wife has been keeping up her end of the literary alliance. She not only is a cultured author, but a canny business woman who knows her way around the writers' market. Yet she is more hurt, perhaps, by the comarcal loss through his unproductive idleness.

At any rate, she has taken an apartment uptown, in a section far away from their luxurious home. There she intends to live and work as an individual.

In this step she is prompted by no marital incompatibility, by no desire for a separate life. She apparently is still her husband's best friend and severest critic. In fact, her move constitutes a kind of criticism. She hopes that he will go to work to get her back.

SEAGOING VOICES
In the first 24 hours of shore-to-ship telephone service, exactly 13 calls were put through between New York and the European-bound Leviathan.

Nine were made from shore, four from the one phone on board ship. Some were the usual introductory courtesy calls that mark the inauguration of communication innovations, but at least three were business calls, paid for at the rate of $21 for three minutes. One man talked from Pittsburgh.

The initial day's number is not considered unlucky by the telephone people, who compare it with the first year of transatlantic phone service. In 1915, when the average was only two calls a day. It now is 500 calls a day.

As for the ship service, communication was found rather difficult on the first voyage as the boat got further out, especially with storms sweeping the coast of England. If that situation prevailed, it was thought that calls might have to be routed from New York to the ship through the London central office.

The Leviathan is said to be the only ship having a telephone switchboard with connections in each room, but that is only incidental as the long-distance service is not connected with it. Instead it goes to a central point, the operator on duty having the passenger page when a call comes in.

Other ships will be similarly equipped for telephone service, the company's office here said, when and if the lines ask for it.

Today's Anniversary

SOCIETY OF JESUITS
On Dec. 30, 1535, the Society of the Jesuits was founded by Ignatius Loyola, a Spanish monk, who entered into an agreement with five of his fellow students to undertake the conversion of all unbelievers and a pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

From this small beginning, it became a powerful society under the energy and shrewd policy of its leaders, and was raised to a degree of its torial importance unparalleled in its kind.

Among Loyola's followers were many learned men, including the great philosopher, St. Thomas Aquinas, and the great theologian, St. Thomas Aquinas.

Today also is the anniversary of the signing of the treaty providing for the Gadsden Purchase, on Dec. 30, 1853.

FUTURE SWEDISH KING DODGES HAZING STUNT

Stockholm—(AP)—The embarrassment of having to hazy the future King of Sweden was obviated at the University of Upsala through having royal tasks keep Prince Gustav Adolf, eldest son of the crown prince, from putting in an appearance until the day after the undergraduate razzing.

When he matriculated the prince enrolled as the Duke of the Province of Vesterbotten. He was elected to "the Noorlands nation," one of the student clubs.

The prince of this particular "nation" was worried by carrying out on the new member the law of the University that on a certain day every man must be initiated into his "nation." The curator communicated his distress to certain officials who saw to it the royal student was "unavoidably detained."

Adventures In The Library

By Arnold Mulder

THE WORLD OF TEXT-BOOKS
A text-book, as everybody knows, is a dull affair. There is no glamor about it, as there is about a novel or a biography or a book of poems. It belongs in the work life of the world—useful and highly necessary but not romantic.

I did not become conscious of the world of text-books until quite recently. While of course I was familiar with text-books and had suffered through them in college as much as anybody, I did not begin to appreciate how many romantic hopes and fears are bound up in those very books with their dull gray or green covers and their blue cloth covers. I did not understand that each of these drab looking volumes, with their reprinted essays or their neat rules of grammar or their commentaries on poems written five hundred years ago, mean romance to their author, sometimes even a Ford car or a vacation from teaching in a summer school.

The romance of book writing and publishing as applied to fiction and poetry and history and biography is familiar to the general public. There are endless stories about this author making a hundred thousand dollars out of his book, about that one who tried in vain to get his biography published and finally won fame and fortune with it after it had been rejected nineteen times. The yarns are legion about novelists or short story writers who starved for fourteen years before they succeeded in breaking through the ice that encases the doors of publishers.

The general public almost never hears such tales about the makers and publishers of text-books. Until recently, although I am fairly much interested in things going on in the publishing world, I never even occurred to me to wonder about the birth and death of text-books. They were to me like the richly illustrated fat catalogues of mail order houses—they appeared somehow impersonally, almost mechanically.

All this changes when you get close to the world of text-books. In this world there is the same milling and pushing and striving that is in the world of novels and biographies and poems. The two worlds hardly touch, even though the same publishers that bring out the novels publish the text-books. They must be men who do not let their text-book hand know what their general literature hand is doing. At least, the people interested in the novels and poems seldom become conscious of the romance of the world of text-books.

I pick up a dull-looking volume crammed from cover to cover with the dulllest rules you can imagine and I am told a "romantic story" of a professor whose wife was sick, whose son had broken his leg, whose three daughters couldn't go to college because dad couldn't afford it. The idea comes into my mind of writing a text-book on punctuation. He did it all during vacation hours between nine and ten in the forenoon, time that otherwise would go to waste. And lo and behold, the little book solved all his problems and now he rides around in an eight-cylinder car.

There are tales galore of that kind. Almost every text-book has some legend connected with it. The quill pen, the book, the mere romantic legend as a rule. In regard to a great many of the text-books there is a legend to the effect that the author is earning $5,000 a year in royalties from it. Why just $3,000 and not $2,500 or $4,000 I don't know. The figure of $3,000 is applied to so many text-books that I will have to examine the publishers' annual balance sheets before taking it very seriously.

I suppose writing text-books become a disease just like writing novels and poems. Sometimes perhaps it chokes poetry to death. I know of at least one promising young poet who early in his teaching career published a volume of poems that were very much worth while. Since then he has taken to text-book writing and his singing voice is still.

It is considerable of an adventure to come upon a new publishing world that has always existed close at hand but to which one has been almost completely blind.

PLANES AKIN TO NAGS, THINKS ELDERLY PILOT

London—(AP)—Britain's oldest air pilot took to flying because planes are so much like horses.

He is A. J. Richardson, aged 67, who once owned a farm in Yorkshire and always had ridden horses until he moved to London. Without them he felt lost here.

"So I joined the London Flying club," he said, "for the nearest thing to riding a horse is flying an airplane."

Richardson qualified for his pilot's certificate two years ago. As yet, his wife has not accompanied him on any of his flights.

"She'll change her mind," he predicted. "When I am 70, I expect to celebrate our golden wedding by flying around the world with her to visit our several children."

WHEN A MAN BECOMES A BIG STIFF

An optometrist submits this interesting comment:

In a recent health talk headed, "A Man Is As Old As His Eyes" you said you have a notion that daily somersaults and other similar foolishness will postpone presbyopia (or the benefit of our lay readers this means old sight) and attending senile changes of that body. I agree with this notion, although I can't see it is absurd as you confessed. (Perhaps our optometric friend meant to say he can see it is absurd as I confessed. Of course proving it is another matter.)

It has been my fortune in the last few years to examine the eyes of several people of 55 who, at the time, had had little or no accommodation (that means focusing for varying distances). Without exception they were of the stiff, overfed type; some very fat, and strangers to housework or honest work, as our correspondents uses the term means muscular exercise, play, labor, the kind of folk who do not enjoy even listening to a lecture on exercise. I have had opportunity to watch four of them since the examination, and within the last year one has died of heart-kidney disease, one has had hemiplegia (that is a stroke of paralysis affecting one side of the body, from apoplexy, hemorrhage into the brain), and one other has fiscal paralysis, and the last has had high blood pressure and a nervous breakdown.

How different from the active man who at 70 or older has one or perhaps two dieters (that means focusing power of one or two meters and darned if we can stop now to define a meter—it is an Irish yard of accommodation. Such cases surely would do your soul good to see.)

I am very much in sympathy with most of your teachings, especially about the eye, and I hope you will find this of some interest. (H. H. J.)

It is of great interest to me for several reasons. First, because I've come from an optometrist. (Gosh, we've got to explain that, now, or else some readers will think we're talking about opticians or maybe even oculists; a kind of confusion which, I fear, some optometrists encourage, by taking unto themselves the use of the title doctor. Not that they have no legal right to it, but merely that they are obviously pirating on the symbol which has always been the doctor's.)

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON
BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—There are two men who serve the United States senate—one a small, wiry blond and the other a tall, portly brunet—who boast that a fine spirit of friendship exists between them and who admit that when one loses sight of the other they live in a state of nervous anxiety.

Carl H. Loeffler is the wiry blond. Col. Edwin A. Halsey is the portly brunet. Loeffler is officially designated as assistant doorkeeper of the senate. Halsey's title is acting assistant doorkeeper.

But in reality these two men are the mental guards of two political parties—Loeffler for the republicans, Halsey for the democrats.

They are at the call of their chiefs for all sorts of missions. Loeffler, for instance, during the hours the senate is in session, is expected to know where every republican senator is, and is able to report to Senator Jim Watson.

Similarly, Halsey is expected to be able to tell Senator Joe Robinson at a moment's notice where his democrats may be found.

HE'S A TRACER
But their duties extend even further. Consider, for example, Loeffler's experiences during the special session, when the democrats and insurgent republicans were fighting hard on the tariff bill.

It was up to him to see that every administration republican was on the senate floor when the coalition forced a roll call vote. Senator Loeffler used him to see that the democrats were not in rank, they were to be seen at the secret whereabouts of every member of the old guard, whether that member had told him or not. Often it was a question of how fast his heels flew as to whether his party won or lost.

Loeffler and Halsey must look after pairs to see that no senator loses his vote.

They send out notices of their party conferences and caucuses, and attend to all of the details. They are the only outsiders admitted to the private sessions of their parties. They keep the minutes of such meetings. On these occasions they take nothing for granted. Every senator is warned once or twice, and those who refuse to attend are reported.

Loeffler personally warned the late Senator La Follette of meetings of his party to make doubly sure there would be no mistake or comeback.

STARTED AS PAGES
Both began in the senate as page boys. Loeffler was appointed by Senator Matthew S. Quay of Pennsylvania, and Halsey by Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia. One boasts of the fact that his antecedents were union men, the other that his were soldiers in the confederacy.

Of the five elective officers of the senate, despite the fact that the doorkeepers are last in rank, they are much more active and their duties more spectacular. Then, too, while the sergeant-at-arms, secretary and chaplain must be elected for every congress, the two doorkeepers are in for all time.

Their individual rank depends on which party is in power. As long as republicans retain control of the senate Loeffler will be assistant doorkeeper, but if the democrats get the upper hand, then Halsey will take his place.

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD

BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—Tin Pan Alley, transplanted almost bodily from New York's Mazza Lane, for many months has been making Flickerville a hot spot for noise, and from every movie lot in town the passer-by may hear a-borning the popular song-hits of tomorrow.

But now comes a new musical and producing "invasion" of the west, both significant and timely.

Arthur Hammerstein, long celebrated as a producer of musical comedy and operetta, is here to produce a series of screen musicals for Joseph Schenck, with Rudolph Friml composing the music.

Oscar Hammerstein II, Arthur's nephew, is here to compose and write musicals directly for the screen, while Jerome Kern, composer, and Otto Harbach, librettist, noted on Broadway, will collaborate to the same end.

These and others of their rank, come to talkie-town at a time when the cry is for musical "originals" to pour into the hungry maws of Hollywood's motion pictures, even though fancy prices are still being asked for the talkie rights to current and past stage successes.

OLD STUFF
The talkies already have adapted to screen use many of the most successful stage musicals, and to date there has been a striking dearth of musical plays written and composed especially for the audible screen.

Excluding the musical revues and lighter types of musical comedy, the only "originals" thus far are "The Love Parade," "La Marseillaise," "Married in Hollywood," "The Rogue Song," "Dixiana," and possibly one or two others.

Next season operators to dare, like the first, "The Desert Song," have been adaptations of stage successes. "Song of the West" was known to the stage "Rainbow," and "Bride of the Regiment" as "The Lady in Ermine," in which a silent Corinne Griffith appeared several years ago.

SCREEN FOR THE SCREEN
But "The Desert Song," "Golden Dawn," "The Vagabond King" and "Rio Rita" bear on the screen their former stage titles, as will most other musicals borrowed from Broadway, such as "Hit the Deck," "Paris," "Sally," "Hold Everything," "Little Johnny Jones," "So Long Letty," "Spring is Here" and probably a dozen or so more.

Hollywood seems agreed that the talkies now must branch out and produce their own works, with original music, as well as those of the stage.

That is what the newcomers plan to do.

BARBS

No two objects in the universe can be more than 540,000,000,000,000 miles apart, science has discovered. Surely, the law doesn't lay down, however, as any two men who pick all-American football teams must be farther apart than that.

A juror in New York was found to be dead after a trial had progressed several hours. It must be very hard to find out whether or not a juror is dead.

Arizona means to keep her dinosaur tracks. That ought to inspire Kansas and Texas to frame their jack-rabbit footprints.

The same country that gave the Kellogg peace pact to the world also has a man named Pat Hurley as secretary of war.

If Mr. Van Dine wants to write a real murder story, he should look into the eyes of almost any shopgirl during the Christmas season.

A naturalist has found a bald-headed eagle. We didn't know naturalists ever went around snooping in the revues.

A Salvation Army officer says religion is making more progress now than ever before. Something of the sort was to be expected—with a stock market like that.

A Detroit automobile magnate, Mr. Henry B. Joy, takes a rap at dry hypocrisy. Surely not because there are so many Joy rides.

First Annual Charity Ball Is Thursday

FINAL arrangements have been completed for the first annual charity ball to be given Thursday night at Cinderella ballroom on the two local circles of the King's Daughters, namely the Community Comfort circle and the Infant Welfare circle. The committee in charge has been working hard to make this project a success so that it may be made an annual event. Little Benny's orchestra of Minneapolis has been secured to play the dance program. The leader is both a musician and entertainer of note. In addition, several pupils of the Banister dancing school will appear in dance specialties. Those who will dance are Margaret Plank, Dolores Tursion, Leone Tenssion, Betty Ann Rosenbom, and Beatrice Bossert. These girls recently took part in the Elk charity production, "She Loved An Elk."

The local circles of the King's Daughters have been in existence in Appleton for six years, and during that time have done a great deal of welfare work, their activities being confined to no particular race or creed, as the organization is non-sectarian. Each year the circles prepare about 24 baskets for the poor of the city at Christmas and Thanksgiving time. About five entire families are taken care of at Christmas time and many others receive aid during the year. The proceeds of the ball will be used to carry on this charitable work during the year.

The ball will be formal and light refreshments will be served. Tickets may be secured until the day of the ball from any member of the committee in charge which includes Mrs. Gustave Keller, Jr., general chairman; Mrs. Paul Scallion, treasurer; Mrs. Francis T. Ray, Mrs. Harrison Fisher, George Mory, and Mrs. M. T. Ray. Extra tickets may be received from Mrs. Paul Scallion, Mrs. James Berstrom is president of the Infant Welfare circle and Mrs. Smith McLandress heads the Community Comfort circle.

Christmas Parties In Swing In Washington

BY DOROTHEA J. LEWIS
(Post-Crescent's Washington Society Editor)

WASHINGTON—With the holiday season about to begin and the official mourning for the late Secretary of War Good ended last Wednesday, social Washington was in a fevered rush of crowding all of its postponed entertainments in with long planned Christmas parties.

The most important affair of last week was, of course, the first White House function of the season, a dinner in honor of the Japanese delegates to the London arms conference who will be in Washington for a visit of ten days.

Ambassador and Mrs. DeBuchi of Japan gave a dinner for them Tuesday and on Wednesday were hosts at a reception at the Mayflower hotel in honor of the delegates. Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper, wife of Representative Cooper of Racine, was one of the guests at the reception.

The past week was a very strenuous though interesting one for Mrs. Cooper. On Wednesday, in addition to the Japanese delegates' reception, she assisted Mrs. Edward Everett Gann in her first afternoon "at home." The ladies of Washington's official group have not been observing their day at home because of the mourning and Wednesday was also the first formal at home during this administration for the ladies of the Cabinet group.

Thursday, Mrs. Cooper was a guest at the "comming out" tea given by the Minister of Hungary and Countess Szecsenyi for their daughter Countess Alice Szecsenyi.

Friday, she attended the luncheon given by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the former governor of Pennsylvania, in honor of Lady Johnson, her sister-in-law, and on Saturday she was a guest at the tea given by Mrs. Richard Aldrich for her debutante daughter, Miss Dora White.

Mrs. Edward E. Browne, wife of Representative Browne of Waupaca, also attended the tea.

Representative and Mrs. John C. Schafer of Milwaukee are remaining in Washington for the holidays, and they have as their guests three Wisconsin Boys now attending the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Midshipman James H. Campbell, Midshipman George J. Campbell, and Midshipman Charles Schafer.

The Schafer family had a number of Wisconsin visitors call upon them lately. Mr. Harley Nickerson of Milwaukee visited them, as did Mr. Frank Fiedler, also of Milwaukee, who was in Washington for several days last week.

Mr. William Armstrong, Mayor of Racine, also called. Representative and Mrs. Schafer were guests at a dinner on December 14, given by Dr. T. A. Shipper in honor of Mrs. Lane, congresswoman from Kentucky.

One of the most interesting events of the past week, and indeed always one of the most entertaining and amusing affairs of the year in Washington, was the Gridiron dinner, the newspaper men's famous stag affair, held on December 14 at the Willard hotel. The list of guests was a very imposing one led by President Hoover, and including almost the entire cabinet, many of the diplomatic corps, and many senators and representatives.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., one of the three speakers of the evening, the others being President Hoover and Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York. Senator La Follette is probably the youngest man ever invited to speak at a Gridiron dinner. According to the rule of the club, "no reporters were present." So the speeches can not be repeated.

SUMMERS ENTERTAIN Representative and Mrs. John W. Summers of Washington entertained for their sons and daughters, Miss Jean Summers, Mrs. Hope Summers Witherell, Mr. Burke Summers and Mr. Paul Summers, who are spending the holidays with them on Saturday. They gave a buffet supper and dance at the Congressional club. Her husband, George, is in Washington.

Representative and Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper and Representative and Mrs. Edward E. Browne were among the guests. Representative and Mrs. Schafer also attended and took their three young midshipmen visitors with them. In addition to the dancing, Hope Summers Witherell, who has been giving recitals in Philadelphia, gave a reading.

Senator and Mrs. John J. Blaine entertained Mr. Laurence Brody of LaCrosse at dinner December 13. He spent Friday and Saturday in Washington.

Although most of the Wisconsin congressional group in Washington is planning to stay in the national capital for the holidays, some are going home. Mrs. Merdin Hull, wife of Representative Hull of Black River Falls, left Washington on December 15 for Milwaukee. She will visit her daughter, Mrs. Marvin Helling, for a few days and will then go on to Black River Falls, where she will be joined by Representative Hull. Representative Hull did not leave Washington until Congress adjourned on the holidays on Saturday.

Miss Lois Hull, who acts as her father's secretary, is remaining in Washington for the holidays.

Representative George J. Schneider left for his home in Appleton at the end of the week.

Miss Grace Nelson, daughter and secretary of Representative John M. Nelson of Madison, attended the party given Saturday by Representative and Mrs. Homer Hoch of Kansas in honor of Miss Junia Culbertson, debutante daughter of Ambassador to Chile and Mrs. William S. Culbertson. Miss Culbertson will make her formal debut at a ball on Christmas eve.

The La Follette family will have a nearly complete family reunion here during the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Fola La Follette is coming from

TWO CHRISTMAS PROGRAMS ARE HELD AT CHURCH

Two programs marked the celebration of Christmas Sunday at Memorial Presbyterian church, the morning program being given at 11 o'clock. The sermon was preached by the Rev. R. A. Garrison and the choir presented several special numbers. They included "Gloria" from Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," "Watchmen on the Walls" from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and "Hallelujah" from Handel's "Messiah."

In the afternoon, "Light," a pageant, was given in six episodes representing epochal periods in church history. The pageant opened with a solo by Paul Cary, Jr., entitled "Light." The first episode was the Creation of Light, the second, Light Through the Church, the third, Light of the Christmas Star, the fourth, Light of the Cross of Christ, and the last the Light of Christians or the followers of Christ.

Personalities were portrayed by members of the church. The special messenger was represented by Althea Hensel, the Bible was opened by Quoted from by Jean and Jane Meyer, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meyer, and the lighting of the seven candlesticks was done by Carleton Wahl, and Robert Meyer, dressed as Jewish priests. Edwin Shannon, John Loveland, and Billy Stark represented the Three Wise Men. Other scenes were represented by larger groups of children.

The committee in charge of the program included Mrs. M. W. Fraser, Miss Carla Heller, and Mrs. George Ballard.

New York City, where she teaches in the Y and country school. Her husband, George Ballard, is a playwright, is coming from Hollywood, Calif., where he has been at the Fox studios for several months. Philip Fox La Follette is coming from Madison. Mrs. Philip La Follette and the children will not be here, as they are in the South.

The other children, Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sucher with their young son Robert La Follette Sucher, will, of course, remain in Washington for the holidays.

Senator La Follette may return to Madison for a few days after the holidays if he has sufficiently recovered from the cold which has kept him confined to his home for the last three days.

Mrs. Steven S. Phelps of Hudson, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Robert W. Clark in Washington for a month, left Monday for Florida to spend the remainder of the winter. Mrs. Phelps is an old friend of Mrs. James A. Frear, wife of Representative Frear of Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip A. Frear and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Johnson of New York are coming to Washington to spend the holidays with their parents, Representative and Mrs. James A. Frear.

Mr. Douglas Hartman of Watertown, secretary of Representative Schneider of Appleton, attended his fraternity's Christmas dance at the Theta Upsilon Omega house at George Washington University on Friday.

Mrs. Edward E. Browne attended a meeting of the Chevy Chase Woman's club on Friday.

Mrs. James A. Frear and Mrs. John C. Schafer attended the Congressional club meeting and musical on Friday. Readings were also given by Miss Hester Walker Beall.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

© 1924 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

SUE found herself wondering which man Geraldine would try to save, as the girl's slender body rustled past her. It took just a second for the action but to Sue it seemed that a century passed.

Then Geraldine had grasped John Foster's arm. At the same instant Sarah brought the camera down on Martin Clinger's shoulder and he gave a furious cry, turned, and grasped her arm.

Ted was too quick for him, and a final blow sent the attorney sprawling in the road.

Geraldine began to cry and Sue heard her own voice asking Sarah why she hadn't struck Clinger on the head instead of the shoulder.

"I don't know. I guess I was afraid I might hit him," Sarah answered, her dark eyes still on Ted's stern, drawn face. "Are you sure you aren't hurt, Ted?" Then, noting that blood trickled from a cut on his cheek, she pulled a gossamer handkerchief from her coat and wiped it away.

Sue looked at John Foster. "Why don't you try to help your legal advisor?" she said. "When a man's down he needs friends, you know."

Geraldine was crying softly. Suddenly she went up to Ted, pushing Sarah away almost unconsciously.

"Honestly, Ted, I didn't know he was going to follow you and do this. I swear I didn't. He said he had to have some money and I had to get it from you. Then money you'd saved for me, and I tried to help him because I thought he was just borrowing. But I didn't know he was going to do this! Ted, say you believe me, please!"

He did not answer at once and when he did his voice was quiet and dazed. "I'm sorry, Geraldine, but I'm believing the evidence I see now."

But I didn't know! I tell you, I didn't! She was growing hysterical. "Oh, I think he's a cad and a coward!"

"You were going to marry him," Sarah reminded her gently.

"I was a fool. Oh, I hate him!" Martin Clinger had arisen, his face ugly.

"Well, I see you won your girl back, Merryman," he sneered. "You're entirely mistaken," Ted answered calmly.

"But—but, Ted!" Geraldine began.

"We can't possibly be concerned in each other's welfare, any more," he told her.

"But we are! I'm not engaged to him any longer." She pulled the ring from her finger and tossed it to Clinger. It fell in the road.

Then Geraldine's voice was pleading. "I'm sorry, Ted. Won't you—let things be as they were?"

Ted shook his head, but he was nervous.

"I said we were through, Geraldine."

"But you've got to let me explain on our way back to town. Oh, you have to! I'll marry you tomorrow to prove it!"

"I don't believe you will, Miss Parker," Sarah interrupted. "Mr. Merryman is engaged to me, you see."

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

"WAKE UP! Wake up, you Tynmites, and see the prettiest of sights. My reindeer are all hitched up. Of course, you know, this is the day when I leave here with loaded sleigh. There's much to do and if you're going to help, you'll have to skip."

It was old Santa Claus who spoke. He gave me Clowzy quite a poke right in the ribs and Clowzy jumped. "I'm wide awake," said he. The others, too, hopped to their feet. Said Clowzy, "Now comes the great. To help old Santa load will be as thrilling as can be."

And then they heard some sleigh bells ring and two small bells began to sing. "Old Santa's getting ready for his trip out in the air. He'll go from house to house and stop. Some wondrous toys he'll gladly drop. When Christmas morning comes the kids will know that he's been there."

"Come, come," cried Santa. "That's enough! We'll have to start to pack and stuff my good old sleigh with toys and things. We'll pack it good and tight!" And so, amid a merry shout, the Tynies brought the presents out. They piled the toys up in a heap. It made a pretty sight.

"Wee Scoot!" hopped into the sleigh and shouted, "Hurry things up this way. I'll take them all where they belong. A packer fine I'll make. Be careful with the dolls and such. You know, it does not take so much to spoil them and we do not want a single thing to break."

Thus, all day long they worked away at putting things in Santa's sleigh. The reindeer held real still, just waiting for a loud giggle! "It won't be long till we are done," cried Santa. "This is heaps of fun! Just think! All of these toys will land in some wee youngster's lap."

(Santa leaves on his wondrous trip in the next story.)

RADIO BOARD TAKES BACK ITS RULE ON CHAIN BROADCASTS

Order, Never Effective, Is Rescinded by Federal Commission

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1929, by the Cons. Press
Washington—Making decisions in three important cases, the Federal Radio commission has concluded its regulatory activities for 1929, and has dedicated 1930 to improvement of broadcasting conditions.

At its final meeting of the year, the commission rescinded two orders previously issued, one proposing to regulate the operations of chain broadcasting stations and the other involving the public utility requirements on communications in Alaska. In the third case it was decided, inferentially, that local broadcasting monopolies are prejudicial to the public interest and the Buffalo Evening News was granted the right to operate full-time on a channel used by one of four Buffalo stations operated by the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation.

As a starter for 1930 the commission called a conference for Jan. 17 of the leading technical minds in broadcasting, to ascertain how conditions may be improved for the listeners. Reduction in interferences to reception and development of uniform practices of broadcasting stations in their mechanical operations will be considered.

Once again the commission decided to keep hands off chain broadcasting. More than a year ago it adopted an order to restrict the operations of stations on cleared channels broadcasting identical chain programs to those separated by at least 300 miles. The order has never become effective, but has been postponed four times. The objective was elimination of duplication on the listener's dial. But broadcasters and listeners objected vigorously. Now, on motion of Commissioner LaFount, the board has rescinded that order and amendments to it, ostensibly to permit further investigation.

In granting the application of the Buffalo News, the commission decided a new problem in radio. The news claimed that the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation, operating stations WMAK, WRGI, WKEN, and WKEN had a virtual monopoly of broadcasting in Buffalo, detrimental to the public interest. It is thought that station WMAK, operating on the 900 kilocycle channel one-half time, and has succeeded. In deciding the case, however, the commission does not give the grounds for its action. It merely states that, effective Jan. 31, the newspaper is assigned full time to the 900 kilocycle channel; that station WFBL, of Syracuse, now operating one-half time on this channel with WMAK, gets full time on the 1100 kilocycle channel and that the applications of stations WBER, Buffalo and WRNY, New York City, for the 900 kilocycle channel, are denied. Whether WMAK will be given another assignment is not made known.

In the Alaska case, the commission reversed itself. Last October it decided that the code stations maintained by the various canning and packing houses in remote areas no longer could be privately operated, but that public utility corporations, serving all on an equal basis, should be created. The packers protested, saying they are highly competitive and cannot clear their traffic through a mutual company. Now the commission permits the stations to operate as heretofore, but under the supervision of the army signal corps. The signal corps maintains extensive cable and radio facilities in Alaska.

REICHSTAG HALTS RADIO TALK FROM PARLIAMENT

Berlin (AP)—Whether parliamentary debates should be broadcast has caused a controversy in Germany since the members of the council of elders of the reichstag to permit the transmission of a speech by foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann.

Just before parliament adjourned for the summer, Dr. Stresemann notified the reichstag of his intention to talk on foreign policies. The Berlin station, directed by the ministry of posts, desired to broadcast the speech, and made extensive plans to do so. But a majority of the council of elders, or steering committee, objected.

The theory was advanced that if one member of parliament were to be given the privilege of speaking to the nation, every member could demand similar treatment.

MEN O' WAR

Two types of gunboats used in our navy—above, the U. S. S. Tulsa, a seagoing ship used chiefly in Central American waters; below, the U. S. S. Guam, a shallow-draft gunboat used on the Yangtze river in China.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth of a series of articles on the strength of the U. S. navy, especially as compared with that of Great Britain. The articles are of especial interest in view of the approaching naval arms limitation conference at London.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Gunboats were once regarded as an important arm in naval warfare and they did good service in the Revolution and the War of 1812. But for a hundred years they have been used especially as armed patrols, establishing something of a reputation as the "police" of imperialism. They have virtually no value as combat ships on the high seas.

U. S. gunboats, designed principally for use on foreign stations, have been used in Central America and China. A gunboat rarely goes above 2000 tons and it is characterized by low speed, long cruising radius, shallow draft and a light battery of guns. It is strongly constructed and is supposed to provide reasonable comfort for crews in the tropics.

The navy's three seagoing gun-boats are the Asheville, Sacramento and Tulsa. Its river gunboats are especially designed for patrol work on the Yangtze river in China. Among the more modern gunboats the Tulsa cost some $3,000,000 and the latest river gunboats about $700,000 apiece. Annual operating costs of gunboats run from $50,000 to $350,000 a year, depending on size and personnel, which numbers as low as 16 on river gunboats and as high as 200 on a ship like the Tulsa.

Our gunboats range in speed from 10 to 16 knots, in length from 120 to 150 feet, in beam from 17 to 41 feet, in draft from a mere 2 1/2 feet to 11 feet and in displacement from 200 to 1700 tons. The principal guns used are 2, 3 and 4-pounders.

The secretary of the navy's annual report lists 12 gunboats as having been on active patrol duty in 1929. As these craft tend toward obsolescence they are sometimes lent to states which have nautical schools.

Tomorrow: Ammunition ships.

Morrow Still Believes In Popular Government

BY WILLIAM HARD

Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
Washington (AP)—Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, is en route to the London naval conference and prospective senator from New Jersey, made a remarkable speech to the Washington newspaper organization called "overseas writers," but, since the rules of "overseas writers" forbid the printing or repeating of anything said by anybody who addressed the club, the reporting of Mr. Morrow's speech becomes quite a problem.

This writer has decided to solve this problem by reporting a few things that Mr. Morrow did not say to "overseas writers" but that this writer has heard him say on previous and other occasions. By this method some light will be shed on Mr. Morrow's character and disposition as a public man in the numerous capacities to which he has attained.

To begin with, it remains an astonishment that this New York lawyer and New York banker continues to be so completely a liberal and so completely a believer in wholly popular government. Mr. Morrow, in praise of the American statesman John Adams, long ago said:

"For the divine right to rule, whether claimed by king or parliament or party, John Adams substituted the divine indefeasible right of the people to govern."

LIBERAL, OLD FASHIONED
There is barely a doubt that Mr. Morrow in the senate will classify as a liberal, just as clearly as Mr. Grundy of Pennsylvania will classify as a conservative.

It seems further quite certain that Mr. Morrow in the senate will not be among those demanding changes in senatorial procedure for the purpose of enacting legislation without debate. On the contrary, Mr. Morrow during the league of nations debate in the senate was one of the few pro-league Americans to stand up and say that the subject was an enormously complicated and difficult one and that the senate ought to take its full time to debate it thoroughly.

From this precedent it may be safely calculated that Mr. Morrow will turn out to be a rather old-fashioned American senator in the direction of wanting complete senatorial deliberation before putting legislative ideas into the statute books.

Further, as a delegate to the London conference, Mr. Morrow, it may be safely anticipated, will go in very heavily for personal persuasion and not so heavily for written argument.

This writer recollects that, when Mr. Morrow was about to depart for the first time to Mexico City, he remarked to a friend:

"I never met a Latin-American lawyer who in written argument couldn't argue himself all around me or any other lawyer from north of the Rio Grande. When I got to Mexico City, I'm going in for personal conferences and not for notes."

That certainly showed a keen judgment of the qualities of the people with whom Mr. Morrow was going to negotiate and some hard common sense about how to avoid getting promptly licked by them.

London, the British, who themselves are pretty good at personal conference, will find in Mr. Morrow an expert at it.

One final remark of Mr. Morrow's, which he did not make at "overseas writers," will further indicate his conception of diplomacy whether in private or in public life. This writer heard Mr. Morrow once say:

"It is not a formula, it is a personality, that makes success in anything anywhere."

Mr. Morrow is a man who is very short, with very small hands and very small feet and a large body and a very large head. The contrast between his diminutive hands and feet and his powerful and forceful head and face is startling. He made one of the most eloquent speeches of his career, not one line of which will ever be printed; and it is only appropriate that some of his wisdom from other occasions should at the same time be recorded.

In Austria, when a customer leaves a shop or restaurant, the proprietor and the assistants, both men and saleswomen, say, "I kiss your hand," although it is merely a verbal formality.

GRIEVOUS ILLS SPEEDILY ENDED BY NEW KONJOLA

Cedar Rapids Lady Rejoices to Pay Tribute to New and Different Medicine

MRS. MARY MERRILL

"No wonder I am enthusiastic about Konjola," said Mrs. Mary Merrill, 310 G. Avenue West, Cedar Rapids. "It seemed that I had more than my share of ills, for I suffered from indigestion, liver and kidney troubles, constipation, nervousness and general weakness. I had pains in my left side, frequent and severe bilious attacks, rheumatic pains in my knees, and black spots danced about my eyes. I could not find the medicine my case required."

"I had not much hope when I started the Konjola treatment, but Konjola certainly surprised me. Constipation yielded, then digestion began to improve. My appetite increased and my nerves became calmer. In four weeks time I was without a trace of any of my former troubles. That has been four weeks ago and I have had no recurrence of any of my health troubles since taking Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Appleton at Schlitz Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

GOOD WEATHER IS SEEN FOR CAPITAL ON CHRISTMAS DAY

About 150 Members Of Congress Stay In Washington For Holidays

Washington—(AP)—No rain, no snow and moderate temperatures.

Broadly speaking, that was the weather forecast for Christmas day for the eastern and southeastern states, despite the fact that in the capital today roofs were covered with snow, slush was underfoot and rain, snow and sleet mingled were falling.

Bad weather today had little effect on Christmas preparations, with congress in recess and the president planning for a quiet holiday season.

Two of the cabinet members, Secretary Mellon and Secretary Brown, were out of town, Mellon being on a yachting trip and Brown in Toledo, Ohio. The majority, however, had arranged to spend the day in the capital.

About 150 members of the house remained in Washington for the Christmas holidays, most of them from the western states who did not desire to make the long trek home.

The majority from eastern states left for their homes over the weekend to spend Christmas at home. A few left for a quick trip to the Panama canal.

Speaker Longworth will remain in the capital over Christmas to be with Mrs. Longworth and their daughter Paulina, but he plans to go to his home in Cincinnati during the latter part of the week to be with relatives.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican leader had arranged to stay at his home in New Haven until the day before congress resumes its work on Jan. 6.

Representative Garner of Texas, the Democratic leader, will stay at his hotel here and celebrate Christmas with Mrs. Garner and their son, Tully.

One of the newer members, Representative Nolan, Republican, Minnesota, is spending his honeymoon by going to Panama. He and Mrs. Estelle Flanders of Minneapolis, were married here quietly Saturday by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, house chaplain.

Both senate leaders had left the capital. Senator Watson, Republican, being in Indiana, and Senator Robinson, Democrat, at his home in Arkansas.

WANT EQUAL RIGHTS

Constantinople—In a short time the Turkish women have pushed themselves out of the obscurity of the home and harem and are now clamoring for equal rights with the men. A recent strike at the Turkish Forest Exploration company resulted in the women getting the same pay as the men. Before the strike they were only getting half the men's wage.

ANOTHER WAY OF QUOTING BONDS IS ON BASIS OF YIELD

Method Expresses Price In Terms Allowing For Effect Of Maturity

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press

New York—There is a way of expressing the market price of a bond in terms which allow for the effect of maturity. That is by quoting them on the basis of yield instead of on the basis of price expressed in percent of par. Take the two bonds we used as illustrations in the preceding article, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy-Illinois Division 3 1/2's of 1947 and Chicago and Northwestern general 3 1/2's of 1957. If the first named sells at 84 it is selling on almost the same yield basis as the latter at 76 or approximately 4.85 percent.

Observe that the income return, that is the annual return on the money it takes to buy the bond disregarding maturity, is considerably larger on the Northwestern than on the Burlington issue. The purchaser of the Burlington bond is willing to take a little less each year because he knows that he will be paid off at par thirty-eight years sooner than the owner of the Northwestern bond. In calculating yield this ready advance of a bond selling at a discount toward par is taken into account. That is what yield means referring to bonds. The mathematical formula used in calculating yields is too technical for explanation here. As a matter of practice bankers and dealers in bonds use tables which show at a glance what the yield is for any given coupon rate, given price and time to maturity.

The point for the average investor to remember is that it is the maturity yield and not the annual income return that fixes the market price. There too we must make one reservation and that is that many individual capitalists dislike to pay a premium for a bond even though the yield is attractive and that this sentiment sometimes does have a slight effect on the market. On the other hand financial institutions have no such prejudice.

EVERS IS TRANSFERRED TO SIXTH CORPS AREA

(POST-CRESCENT'S WASHINGTON BUREAU)

Washington—Captain Clarence P. Evers has been transferred from the State College of Washington at Pullman, Wash., to Green Bay. He will be assigned to duty with the 528 motor transport command of the organization reserves in the Sixth Corps area, according to orders issued by the War Department.

10 CITIES HIRE OVER 200 TEACHERS EACH

Madison—(P)—Ten cities under superintendents of education are employing over 200 school teachers apiece, the state educational directory reveals. They are: Milwaukee, Madison, Racine, Kenosha, Superior, West Allis, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and Sheboygan. Nine cities employ between one and two hundred teachers and only two cities have less than ten teachers.

CLEAN BEE DISEASE BY AREA ERADICATION

Madison—(P)—The fatal bee disease known as American foul brood disease, can be cleaned up through area eradication methods, the state department of agriculture and markets has found.

The disease was introduced in the state about 60 years ago by the importation of Italian queens to Jefferson county. The law relating to its eradication allows state representatives to destroy bees in which the infection is found and prohibits shipment of bees or honey from equipment without the inspection for the disease. During last year's inspection 1,500 colonies of bees found infected were destroyed. Fourteen counties met the state's appropriation for "elimination of plant and small animal diseases" last year, by appropriating a total of $6,470.

Talks To Parents

MOONLIGHT BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

Carol lay awake in his bed and watched the moonlight streaming through the aquarium on the window sill.

He had spent all day planting the water grasses and arranging the stones. His fish were not common gold fish, but that exotic, fan-tailed variety which seem much too fantastic to be real.

The silent world of the aquarium was luminous with a transfiguring light that endowed the quiet grasses, the silvery sand and the fish as they swam and shone and drifted with what seemed to the boy incredible beauty. His aquarium was beautiful and he had made it. He lay looking at it happily for a long while.

Suddenly he noticed that there remained but one beam of light shining through the water and in a moment that, too, was gone.

And all at once there swept over him a feeling of loneliness and a realization that even in this little world of water which he himself had so happily created, there existed currents of life, and states of being utterly foreign.

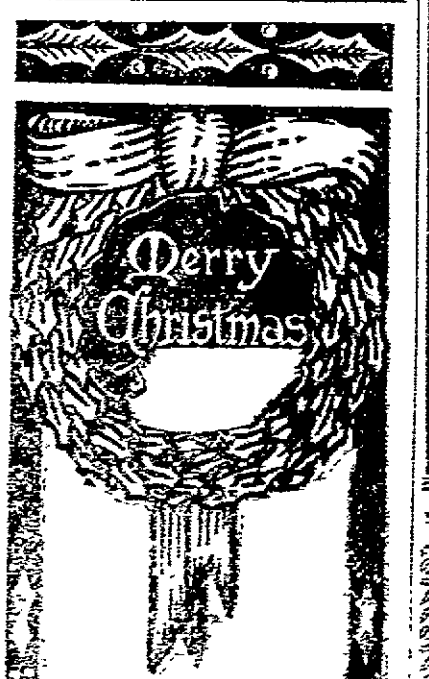

Then it came to him that just as the moonlight ceased to shine through his aquarium making it alive and beautiful, so too, the warmth and life would leave every one he knew and that he himself would one day become a part of cold oblivion. And he found himself sobbing into his pillow.

After in the next room heard and came in softly. She said, "Sweetie, comforting things. She fussed with the windows, tucked in his covers, kissed him once more, left him and he went to sleep.

BUILDING IS LESS HERE AS ELSEWHERE

Permits Authorizing Construction Worth $122,435 Issued

Appleton rode on the wagon of deposed building operations along with most other cities in the county during November, its permits totaling $122,435, compared to $135,045 in October, according to the Straus National Monthly building survey. However, the November building showed an increase of over 10,000 over that of November, 1928.

The total amount expended on building in the state during the month was $5,767,437 and that of 1928 aggregated $121,795,455. With New York and Illinois holding first and second places respectively, Wisconsin placed eighth on the list of leading states.

Both Green Bay and Oshkosh showed decreases in building expenditures, new building in Green Bay costing $123,715 and new structures in Oshkosh totalling $99,659. Building operations in Green Bay in October amounted to $144,240 and in Oshkosh, $106,222.

The cost of building in other Wisconsin cities was listed as: Fond du Lac, $38,590; Manitowoc, $180,041; Waupun, $35,250; Sheboygan, $87,966; Superior, $287,670; Beloit, $56,126; Eau Claire, $38,200; Madison, $136,597; Milwaukee $3,571,152; Racine, $336,430; and West Allis, $124,420.

The drop in building permits all over the country, of more than seasonal proportions, was 23 per cent over November, 1928, and 23 per cent over last month. These declines are the most drastic reported by building inspectors in recent years.

Expect Badger Cagers To Again Dominate In Big 9

WOLVES, PURDUE, AND WILDCATS ALSO RATE HIGH

Boilermakers Lose Pre-Season Game To Strong Butler Five

CHICAGO (AP)—The same four teams that dominated Western conference basketball last season—Michigan, Wisconsin, Purdue and Northwestern—appear again to be winding up to battle it out for the 1930 championship.

Michigan and Wisconsin, which shared the title a year ago, have gone unscathed through their practice games and appear to be possessed of great power. The Wolverines have won three practice contests with a 27 to 24 triumph over Pennsylvania and a 51 to 9 victory over Albion the outstanding achievements. The Badgers, playing two games without captain Bud Foster, also have won three games and have shown steady improvement.

Northwestern dropped a 25 to 30 decision to Pittsburgh's great five, but redeemed itself with a 30 to 27 overtime victory over Notre Dame. Purdue—with its veteran material and the presence of "Stretch" Murphy—is regarded as a strong contender after it finds its stride, although it was defeated by its Hoosier neighbor, Butler, Saturday night by 26 to 23. The Indianapolis team stopped Murphy and the Boilermakers offense failed to function up to standard. Minnesota gave the Big Nine its only victory in four games Saturday night. The Gophers, swamped Cornell (Iowa) college, 46 to 15, collecting 21 field goals. Minnesota scored another goal, but it was to the credit of Cornell when Scooby, Gopher substitute guard, dribbled in and dropped one through the wrong hoop.

Indiana failed to get started against Pennsylvania and received a 26 to 21 setback at Philadelphia, while Chicago was beaten, 13 to 15, by a veteran five from Oberlin. The Hoosiers have not won a start this season while Chicago's only other contest resulted in a victory over Lake Forest. Minnesota has won all its early games, but has yet to encounter first rate competition.

Illinois lost Bradley Tech in its opener, but came back to defeat Washington University, of St. Louis, last week, while Ohio State was stretched to gain a one-point victory over Ohio University in its single pre-season game.

But two games remain on the pre-holiday schedule. Illinois will meet De Pauw tonight, and Wisconsin will engage Lombard Saturday at Madison.

ARMY'S GRIDDERS ARRIVE ON COAST

Cadets Will Receive Week's Workout For Game With Stanford, Jan. 1

Stanford University, Calif. (AP)—The Army's gridders, warriors, with a retinue 150 strong, were in Stanford today, ready to open a period of intensive training for their battle New Year's day with Stanford University.

A special train of 13 cars on which the cadets crossed the continent arrived here shortly before midnight, nine hours behind schedule. Several hundred Stanford students greeted the visitors and Coach Glenn Warner was on hand to see that they were given the welcome of friendly enemies.

The entire West Point delegation was taken immediately to Branham Hall, on the campus, which has been prepared for their exclusive use until after the holidays.

Workouts composed mostly of track work and signal practice to take the kinks out of train weary backs and legs, was planned for today by Coach Lawrence "Biff" Jones, of the Army. For the rest of the week, Jones said, his charges will demand privacy while they perfect their strategy for the New Year's day classic.

Capt. Warner's Cardinals will pursue the same routine. A varsity team composed of the same men that started against California, with one exception, has been practicing a defense against the Army passing attack for several days. The lone exception is Perry Taylor, who replaced Walt Heinicke at center. Heinicke is in a hospital with a cold but is expected to play Saturday.

PACKERS WILL OPEN 1930 SEASON SEPT. 14

Green Bay — Green Bay's professional football team had its biggest financial year in history in 1929. After paying all expenses and bonuses, the club ledger still showed a profit that ran into five figures it was announced after the regular business meeting last year.

Approximately $5,000 of this year's surplus, will be turned back into the playing field before the 1930 season begins. Two thousand additional bleacher seats will be built, increasing the seating capacity to more than 13,000.

It was also voted at the meeting last week to open the 1930 season Sunday, Sept. 14, if possible with a non-conference game with the Memphis Tigers of Memphis, Tenn. The Tigers handed the Packers their only defeat of the season this year in an exhibition game last Sunday, 20 to 6.

The club will hold its flag raising ceremonies the first Sunday of play.

Eastern Schools Frown On Long Football Trips

BY LAWRENCE PERRY Copyright 1929

NEW YORK—Yale's emphatic negative attitude toward the report from California that the university of California might invite the Ells to come out to the west coast for a football game next year reflects a state of mind toward long distance football journeys which exists not only at Yale but among other important institutions, lying between the Atlantic coast and the Mississippi river.

Primarily, it is felt, that football players are in college for the same reason that the rest of the undergraduates are there—for scholastic work. So long as the work of the curriculum is not interfered with, the faculties have no objection to football trips. But tours involving thousands of miles most certainly interfere with classroom work in institutions where the educational scheme is rigid.

RED MARTIN OUT OF RIFON LINEUP

Football Injury Keeps Crimson's Star From Basketball Court

Ripon—After dropping their first non-conference tilt by a margin of four points, Coach Potthoff's Ripon college cagers came into their own against the Fond du Lac quintette by defeating the invaders, 45 to 11. Following their second preliminary tilt the varsity squad left Saturday for a brief holiday rest.

Aside from needed basket tossing practice which the Fond du Lac scorer sprang off, the inexperienced Red Men quintette took advantage of an early lead to experiment with new court plays which were dashed out to them by Potthoff early this week. A handful of sophisticated sophomores, who are expected to complete the Red Men five for conference games after Christmas, were sent into the fray and experimented with at various positions. In the absence of Capt. Donald (Red) Martin, the only seasoned cager performing for the Red Men was Rodney Martin, brother of Red, and a Ripon grid star.

Red, the spark in Ripon's Big Four championship quintette last year, and sensational quarterback during the past grid campaign, is still nursing an injury suffered during the football season. His cage activities this month have been confined to a few light workouts. When the varsity returns on Dec. 30 to prepare for early tilts in the Big Four and midwest conferences, Martin may not be available for duty.

SET DATES FOR WINTER SPORTS EVENTS IN WEST

Ogden, Utah (AP)—Definite dates for winter sports programs at Tahoe, Cal., Ogden, Utah, and Ashton, Idaho, have been approved by the Western American Sports association.

The Tahoe-Sierra dog derby at Tahoe will be held Jan. 31, Feb. 1 and 2. Ogden's derby will be held Feb. 15 and 16 and the Ashton event on Feb. 22.

Professional ski jumpers will compete at Ogden on Feb. 15 and 16 and at Tahoe on Feb. 22 and 23.

Prizes for dog derbies at the three cities total $3,500.

Indiana failed to get started against Pennsylvania and received a 26 to 21 setback at Philadelphia, while Chicago was beaten, 13 to 15, by a veteran five from Oberlin. BANKERS DEFEAT Y. M. C. A. CAGERS

Lakeview Paper Forfeits To Mulford's In Industrial Cage Loop

With Lakeview Paper company basket ball team forfeiting to the Kankakee Mulford's, only one game was played in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial basketball league again Saturday. It featured the Y. M. C. A. team versus the Bankers and was an overwhelming victory for the latter.

The final score was 30 and 14. Led by Ray Tornow who counted eight baskets during the evening, four in each quarter, the banks ran up a 15 to 6 margin in the first half. The second period was repetition of the first with the Bankers getting another 15 points and the association five eight points.

The tournament of roses games at Pasadena began in 1919, the year before the United States entered the world war. Brown going out to play Washington State and losing, 14 to 0. In 1917 Pennsylvania was the attraction and Oregon, coached by Hugo Bezdek won. In 1918 and 1919 rose bowl games were played by service eleven. Harvard went to Pasadena in 1920 and won from Oregon 7 to 6. In 1921 Ohio state, champions of the Western conference, met California and what with the heat and Brick Muller's forward passing, the Buckeyes were swamped 28 to 0. Next year Washington and Jefferson and California played a 0-0 tie.

In 1923 Southern California played host to Penn State, downing the Nittany team 14 to 3. The following year the Washington Huskies and the Navy wound up on a deadlock, 14 to 14. Notre Dame next appeared, beating Stanford, 27 to 10. Alabama went to Pasadena in 1926, defeating Washington, 20 to 19. In 1927 Alabama again came west and tied up Stanford, 7 to 7. Stanford was host to Pittsburgh in 1928, winning 7 to 5 while last New Year's day Georgia Tech threw the gaff into California.

Recapitulating it will be seen that west coast colleges have won five victories, the east one, the middle west one, and the south two. Eastern teams have played two ties and a southern team one.

DEMPSEY SEEKS MAIN BOUT FOR JAN. 17 CARD

Chicago (AP)—Promoter Jack Dempsey is busy hunting a main bout for Jan. 17 to replace the welterweight title fight between Jackie Fields, champion, and Young Jack Thompson, San Francisco Negro, which has been moved to Madison Square Garden for Jan. 3.

Dempsey abandoned plans for the championship affair because of feeling against "mixed" title bouts in Illinois, after signing the pair early this month for the Chicago Coliseum. He is working on a match between Kid Chocolate, sensational featherweight, and a suitable opponent.

IRA TUBBS QUILTS AS SUPERIOR NORMAL COACH

Superior (AP)—Superior Teachers college officials today cast about for a new athletic director to succeed Ira I. Tubbs, who announced his resignation effective Jan. 31.

Tubbs, whose football team last season won the undisputed state title, proffered his resignation because of a salary disagreement and it was accepted by President A. D. S. Gillett.

Tubbs' chief claims to fame lie in his developing of many stars, among them Ernie Nevers, Stanford's all-American fullback of 1925, and his invention of many devices in athletic equipment, including a laceless football and basketball.

SHIRES SIGNS FOR FIVE APPEARANCES IN BOXING RINGS

Will Meet Al Spohrer, Boston Brave Catcher, in Boston, Jan. 17

Chicago (AP)—Five cities in the east and middle west will get a look at Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires—and Charles Arthur will get $20,000.

Far from being wrecked by his defeat by George Trafton, the pugilist career of the great one is just nicely started, he says. He has signed for appearances in Detroit, New York, Buffalo, St. Paul and Davenport, Ia. and plans to keep on fighting until about two weeks before the baseball training season opens.

Shires announced that Jackie Fields, world welterweight champion, will aid him in preparing for the bouts.

The White Sox first baseman, now back in perfect talking form, says he would be glad to favor Chicago with another appearance in the ring. If he wins four out of the five four-rounders on his schedule, his opponent here, if he could choose, would be none other than his recent conqueror, the Supergreat Trafton.

Shy Arthur's first date is at Buffalo, Dec. 25. Jan. 3, he will fight in Detroit and on Jan. 3, will engage in one of the preliminary bouts on the Eddie Fields-Young Jack Thompson welterweight championship fight card in Madison Square Garden, New York. He will show in St. Paul, Jan. 7, and two days later will appear before the fans of Davenport, Ia.

Boston may be treated to a look at Shires Jan. 17. Promoter Eddie Mack is negotiating for a six-round meeting between the great man and Al Spohrer, Boston Brave catcher, who has served as a sparring partner for Tommy Loughran, retired light heavyweight champion.

Fear Of Permanent Injury Keeps Tunney From Ring

BY JOHN J. ROMANO Copyright 1929

NEW YORK—Gene Tunney's permanent retirement from the ring does not mean that gentleman Gene has forgotten all about the hectic moments he spent inside the roped arena. Some of Gene's fights were terrific ones. So much so that Tunney is being carefully examined to ascertain whether some blows he received have not injured delicate nerves and muscles, which may show at some future date.

Tunney's fears are not groundless. There is a good reason for the pre-

CONNIE MACK IS 67 YEARS OLD

Veteran Pilot Of Philadelphia Athletics Plans Another Winner

Philadelphia (AP)—Connie Mack, hale and hearty, was recording congratulations today on his sixty-seventh birthday. The veteran manager of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics said that so far as he was concerned it was just another birthday and was without significance.

For 28 years he has been head of the Mackmen. When he began managing them William McKinley was president of the United States. Jim Jefferies was heavyweight champion of the world, Al Simmons wasn't a born and bred Philadelphia gentleman, but the buggie ride. Since then he has won seven league championships and four world series.

"I know I'm 67, but I don't feel it," Mack said. "I never felt better and all my energies are now devoted to the coming season. I am going to make every effort to bring another championship to Philadelphia and I think we can do it by try."

"When am I going to retire? Not until I am forced to quit. This is my life—baseball. I'm going to stay in it until I am physically unable to continue."

Match Bowling Games

FOUR more match bowling games were rolled on Appleton alleys over the weekend, most of them featuring local teams against valley and other local quintets.

Appleton Eagles won a game from the Menasha Eagles on local club alleys 2329 to 2346, and incidentally copied the three games.

The West Side Tire team composed of Appleton girls took advantage of a 300 pin handicap in a game with Sam's Sinkers and won 2333 to 2342. The Appleton team lost two of the three games but a big last game gave them the match.

Elk club bowlers found the Behnke five just a bit too tough in a match game on the Elk alleys and went down to defeat 247 to 2582. The Elks also lost two of the three games.

Another match game gave the Carpenters a win over the Appleton Machine company team, 2130 to 2105. The game was rolled on Eagle alleys. Scores of the matches follow:

GRIFFITH, RISCO MEET FOR CHANCE AT JACK SHARKEY

Bud Taylor, Terra Haute Earl Mastro On Chicago Card Friday

NEW YORK (AP)—The opponent Madison Square Garden seeks for Jack Sharkey in the battle of the pals at Miami in February may be found no later than Friday of this week.

Gerald Ambrose (Puffy) Griffith of Sioux City, Ia., a youngster, may get the call to meet Sharkey at Miami Feb. 27 provided he can dispose of Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, at the Garden Friday night. That is no task for a novice but there are plenty of experts who believe Gerald Ambrose is the next heavyweight champion of the world and that he will bounce the Cleveland rubber mat to the floor in short order.

Supporting the ten round final will be two other tens involving heavyweights. Paul Cavalier and Harold Mays, rival Jerseyites, fight it out in the semi-final. Joe Sekyra, Dayton Bohemian clashes with Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro in the first ten.

Bud Taylor, Terra Haute featherweight, takes on Earl Mastro of Chicago in the ten round wind-up at the Chicago Stadium, Friday night, with Hein Mueller, German heavyweight, and Eliezer Rioux of Canada swapping punches in another ten.

Marquette Finally Admits Johnny Sisk Is Great Football Player

Marquette — Winning considerable all-American and all-Western mention as a sophomore, Johnny Sisk, Marquette university's brilliant backfield man from Chicago, already has taken rank as one of the greatest ball-carriers in the history of the gridiron sport on the Hill-top.

James Masker, "dean" of Western conference grid officials who announced his retirement as a referee after he worked the Marquette-Kansas Aggie game at Thanksgiving day, declares that the local university has one of the future greats of intercollegiate football in the Big Train from the Windy City.

Masker has seen the best of the middlewestern backs at close range this season, and also had a chance to see Sisk steal the show in both the Iowa State and Kansas Aggie games. "Sisk ought to rank with the best in the game in another year," said the veteran official. "He is a beautiful runner with the power and physique which makes him almost a double for Welch of Purdue on the field."

"He probably lacked polish in the other departments of play, such as blocking and defensive work, as is often the case with sophomores, but I think the boy showed the possibilities of a great back."

There is no question about Sisk's ability to choo-choo along the chalk-line at top speed, and he also has proved himself in other departments. The Big Train now is preparing for another variety sport track meet, will wear the Blue and Gold in the century and quarter-mile races in the winter and spring seasons.

MARQUETTE CAGERS WIN FROM HAWKS

Cord Lipe Keeps Basketeers In Milwaukee To Prep For Big Games

Milwaukee — While other Marquette university students are away enjoying their two-weeks' Christmas vacation, members of the Blue and Gold basketball squad remain in Milwaukee to participate in four major games on the local floor.

The holiday campaigning started Saturday night with Rolfe Williams, University of Iowa quintet, "The Big Ten" outcasts, invading the Marquette gymnasium for their annual battle. The Hawks lost 29 to 19 when Marquette staged an upset. A return game will be played at Iowa City early in March.

After a one day layoff for Christmas, Cord Lipe's cagers will return to regular practice Thursday in preparation for their Dec. 28 game here with the Montana State Bobcats. Rocky Mountain conference champions. The Montanans averaged 60 points a game last season, and ran up a total of 116 points one one opponent less than two weeks ago.

The North Dakota State Vikings of Fargo, N. D., furnish the Marquette team with its opposition in the varsity gym, Wednesday night, Jan. 1. The Westerners will be on a tour of this section, and have developed a strong team to represent their school on the holiday invasion.

Closing the vacation basketball entertainment will be the annual local game with the Lawrence college Vikings of Appleton, Wis., Saturday night, Jan. 4. Coach A. C. Denney's Vikings have started fast in their new gymnasium this season, turning in easy victories in their first three games.

At the resumption of play Milwaukee rallied and chalked up 6 points before the Carroll defense tightened and the offense started to function. Vander Mullen netted a long basket and Carroll was on its way again to the impressive triumph.

H. SMITH WINNER OF PASADENA OPEN

Three Professionals And One Amateur Tied For Second Place

Pasadena, Calif. — (AP)—Horton Smith, slim youngster from Joplin, Mo., today was the smiling possessor of another golf glory—the second annual Pasadena $4,000 open tournament.

Virtually an unknown a year ago when he made a sensational capture of the Catalina Island annual tourney, the 21-year-old professional wound up his spectacular year's conquest of the golf courses by turning in a card of 280, six strokes ahead of hard fighting rival professionals.

For the 72 holes Smith was four under par, his worst effort was two rounds of par golf, a true picture of his consistency throughout. He won $1,000 cash as first prize money.

The competition drew three professionals and one amateur to a tie for second place, but they were six strokes behind the youthful leader with 286's each. The four were Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J., Eddie Loos, Pasadena, Cal., and George Von Elm, Detroit, amateur. Denny Shute, Columbus, Ohio, trailed into the third place with a 287, and Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion and Johnny Farrell, tied with three others on the 288 mark.

Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., defending champion, who established the course record with a 65 in winning the tournament last year, failed to make the money, winning finishers. A bad 82 on the final round put his total at 294.

Of the prize money Dudley, Golden and Loos drew $450 each. Shute won $300.

With the finish of the match came an announcement from Bob Harlow, manager of Western Union, that the British open champion and Diegel, shortly would start play in a two-golf golf comedy, for which they had been contracted at $3,000 each.

Santa Claus, Most Loved Character All Over World, Is Spirit Of Christmas In Many Lands

BY BENJIL MILLER

Santa Claus—the jolly old gentleman with the ruddy cheeks and flowing beard who gladdens the hearts of children on Christmas Day—is the world's best known and most loved character.

To be sure, he travels under a lot of different names in foreign lands and he varies his methods to fit their customs and traditions. But regardless of all that his work is all to the same purpose and he is known and loved all over the world.

Why? Because he personifies the Spirit of Christmas. Everywhere, he is bringing good cheer and happiness.

TRAITS FROM MANY LANDS

Santa Claus' family history shows that he is a composite individual combining traits from many lands. He originated in Holland several hundred years ago as a very stern but charitable churchman in long black robes. The Germans adopted him and fitted the Christmas tree into his program. Then the English, calling him Father Christmas, took him over and made him into a fat, jolly old fellow who was the children's patron saint. The Norwegians next gave him his team of prancing reindeer and jingling sleighs, as one would expect in such a northern country.

And then, a hundred years ago, an American—Clement Moore—wrote a poem that combined all these features. That poem was "The Night Before Christmas" and it established Santa Claus as we know him today.

RIDES A WHITE HORSE

In Belgium, as in Holland, Santa Claus still rides a white horse when he makes his rounds on Christmas Eve. Little Dutch boys and girls place their shoes before the horse and expect to find the gifts dropped down the chimney by Santa will fall into them.

Although Santa is still rather a stern disciplinarian in Holland, regarding good children with toys and gifts and leaving switches in the wooden shoes of the naughty ones, he is more liberal in England. There children are children and old Father Christmas makes all of them happy, good and bad alike.

DEVIL ANGEL ACCOMPANY HIM

In Bohemia at Christmas time, good and bad Saint Mikulas goes through the village with switches and toys for the good children, switches for the naughty boys and urges Saint Mikulas to give them only switches, but the angel intercedes for the naughty one and always wins her point when they promise to be good in the future.

Poland has a Christmas tradition that is truly beautiful. The children are told that at the hour of Christ's birth cows, horses and other dumb beasts are endowed with speech, as Christ was born in a manger. Children go to the barns and plead with the animals to talk with them—and when the beasts refuse to answer, the children know they have been naughty and must be better next year. No animals are worked on Christmas day and even the cows are not milked, the milk being left for the Mother of God, should she pass that way and need it.

In old Hungary, Christmas is "Karacsony." Shoes are placed on the doorstep. Sugar is placed there for the good children, switches for the naughty.

In Greece, good Hagios Vasilios makes his rounds, delivering gifts to the children. His other name is Saint Basil.

In Spain the children put their shoes on the balcony before the family leaves for church on Christmas morn, leaving tufts of straw and hay therein for Santa Claus' horse. Returning, the children and shoes filled with presents.

In Italy the festival season begins on the day of good old Saint Nicola, the giver of gifts. But the gifts are distributed by "the Befana," a witch-like old woman in long black robes.

In Sweden and Norway, white-haired and jolly Father Christmas brings his gifts on a jingling sleigh with prancing reindeer. All work is suspended for several days as happy family reunions and ski-jumping contests are held.

ONOMAS BRING GIFTS

In Denmark, little is heard of Santa Claus. The presents for the children are not brought by him but by gay little gnomes who are reputed to wear red hats and are invisible to childish eyes.

The French Christmas is "Noel," meaning "good news." And it was the French who originated the Yule log and the Christmas cake, now part and parcel of Santa's program in many lands.

In Germany Christmas is the happiest day in the year with feasting and family merry-making. The Germans originated the Christmas tree—even if the Norwegians did hit upon the idea of decorating it with colorful lights, in honor of the aurora borealis.

And so, as Santa Claus makes his rounds at Christmas time, he takes on many different forms and travels under many different names in various lands. But regardless of whether he is the good Kris Kringle in Holland, the good Hagios Vasilios in Greece, the good Father Christmas in England or the good Saint Mikulas in Bohemia, he is all the same. For he is the Spirit of Christmas.

SEAL SALE NETS MORE THAN $500, SAYS CHAIRMAN

Committee In Charge Hopes To Raise At Least $700 In Campaign

Kaukauna—More than $500 has been turned in in the Christmas seal campaign being conducted here under auspices of the Kaukauna Woman's club, according to Mrs. Olin G. Dyer, chairman of the committee in charge. The committee is pleased with the response shown by citizens, and urges those who have not sent in their returns to do so at once so that a final check-up can be made.

The campaign last year netted nearly $700 and the committee wishes to reach that mark again. About $200 must be collected to reach the desired mark. The campaign ends on Christmas day. All returns must be in by Jan. 15.

The city will compete in the state contest that awards the city having the largest returns from the seal sale a free health clinic. Cities in the state are divided into classes according to population. There will be one winner in the seven classes. Kaukauna is in the class of cities with populations between 5,000 and 8,000.

A two-day clinic will be awarded to the winning city in this class with the services of a public health officer and two doctors. Mrs. Dyer expressed the hope that Kaukauna will win a clinic. In order to compete for the award, all returns must be in by Jan. 15. Any returns made after this date will not be counted in the contest.

CALM CONTACTS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES SEEN FOR NEW YEAR

Ship Of State Sails In Tranquil Seas, Unfretted By Big Storms

BY KIRKE SIMPSON
Washington—(AP)—The American ship of state sailed in tranquil international seas, unfretted by major storms of conflicting interests, as the New Year dawned.

North, south, west, Mr. Hoover could discern no grave perplexity just ahead for his administration that was not a problem common to all the family of nations.

His chief concern as navigator was to eastward. It had to do with the hearing London conference on naval armaments; with new efforts in promotion of permanent peace.

In the Far East, war clouds hovered over the tangled Sino-Russian railway dispute in Manchuria. In Washington, however, no immediate question of protecting American lives or interests complicated renewed efforts of Secretary Stimson to find within the broad terms of the Kellogg-Briand universal peace pact a formula of diplomatic pressure for peace.

With Mexico on the south as with Canada to the north, American relations were friendly. No new dispute over oil lands or banditry had arisen to vex the tranquility of Mexican-American contacts Ambassador Morrow had achieved.

In Central and South America, also, the outcry of anti-Americanism and alleged American imperialism, which marked the troubled course of Nicaragua's civil war, had died away.

LITTLE JOE THOUGH EASY FOR SOME, HIGH SCHOOL WORK IS AN UP GRADE BATTLE

ism, which marked the troubled course of Nicaragua's civil war, had died away.

Nicaragua was consolidating its self under leadership of its liberal president, General Menéndez, and American marines, who supervised the election and crushed outbreaks of banditry, were awaiting orders for home, their numbers already greatly reduced.

Further south, problems of years' standing and that had always held a threat of war yielded at last to pacific adjustments. Peru and Chile had found means to bridge in friendship the Tauma-Arica rift; the border dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay, blood tinged at the outset, was moving slowly toward peaceful adjustment under inspiration of Pan-American machinery located in Washington.

In Europe, the passing of Germany's great conciliator, Gustav Stresemann, made, no break in the progress of post-war rapprochement to which the United States has lent its aid continuously while standing aloof, as a government, from European political quarrels.

Rise of a new labor ministry in England served only to pave the way President Hoover had charted toward the London naval parity and for the first time, had brought a British prime minister and an American president into round table discussion of common problems and aims.

Marking the more hopeful outlook of peace plans, former Secretary Kellogg and his vice-pres. Briand of Peace, were receiving abroad highest honors for their joint labors in erection of the universal peace pact.

Both Italy and France had been won to participation in the London naval parity despite their refusal to take that course two years before at President Coolidge's invitation.

Thus, at the New Year, the most active phases of America's international dealings were those aimed at world peace.

Still ahead lay the many and difficult questions that might arise from external aspects of new American farm relief or tariff legislation; but in none of these lay war threats or a challenge to America's will to live at peace with all peoples.

CHAPTER 35
A CORNER TABLE

ONE particular night, about 10 days after her dismissal of Henderson, Barbara found herself alone in her apartment. She had been feeling very blue since dinner, lying on the couch, books and magazines in great array around her, but there wasn't one on which she found herself able to concentrate. Perhaps this was because the inevitable love theme made her at the same time both wistful and angry.

"It's all absurd," she cried aloud in resentment as she came to the end of one story. "Stupid, clap-trap fiction, written so as to throw a rose hue over life that doesn't exist. Men faithful—blah! They can't remain true to one woman, once she's out of their sight, for 10 minutes."

A clock struck ten. She stretched herself lazily. Hours before she need go to bed. Anyhow, she was sleeping badly and the prospect of long, weary hours of wakefulness appalled her. Gradually, as she lay there, she became conscious of strong desire to see Ray again, just to see him, if only for a few minutes.

She didn't quite know when the idea of going to the Golden Dollar club came into her head, but once it had, it took a firm hold of her.

Why shouldn't she go? The club was open to the public and, this being Monday night, it was unlikely that she would run across any of her set. Anyhow, just to drop in for a few minutes could do no possible harm. She wanted to see Ray—desperately!

Of course, she wasn't weakening in her decision to divorce him. That Henderson had been discredited in her eyes made no appreciable difference. She had seen Ray in the girl's apartment at an hour when the inference she drew was the natural one.

In no time Barbara found herself sitting tense and straight in a taxi-cab, rattling down Fifth avenue towards the Golden Dollar club. Their progress was slow. To Barbara a few minutes with impatience to be there now that she had definitely decided upon going, it seemed that every obstacle possible cropped up to hamper their speed.

Perhaps she was afraid that should they linger she would lose her nerve. That, she might, seemed fairly evident, for, when finally the brilliant, twinkling sign of the Golden Dollar club blinked at her from across the street, she made a driver go round the block once more before she had sufficient courage to pay him and run across the pavement into the arched doorway.

Down the steps she ran, quickly, breathlessly, colliding with the manager, a distinguished, suave-looking man who might have graced the diplomatic service had there not been more money in night clubs.

"Excuse me, is a table reserved?" he inquired deferentially.

Barbara shook her head. She was beginning to feel slightly foolish under his polite scrutiny.

"You are perhaps going to join friends?"

"No," said Barbara. Then, with a show of impatience, "I want a single table, as secluded as possible."

Afterwards she congratulated herself upon carrying it off with a very high price.

A perceptible second longer his glance lingered upon her, taking in the rich ermine-lined opera cloak, the beaded sapphire gown that showed beneath it, the several fine, conspicuous rings that adorned her white hands.

"Certainly. Come this way, madam."

He seated her in a little booth near the door, from where she was able to see much of the crowd as it went by. Banishing her neck a little around the side, she had a clear view of the orchestra, the gay and impudent clowns of jazz known as the Golden Symphony Eight.

A few seconds it was before she could bring herself to look directly at Ray, although he was easily distinguished towering, as he did, above the other members in the band. At sight of him she felt a queer, sick feeling inside her. She had to blink very hard to keep the tears out of her eyes.

The waiter, a swarthy, handsome young man from Italy, was speaking as he presented the menu.

"Madam, what does one want?"

"No—no."

Looking up, she saw, or thought she saw, a look of pity pass over the waiter's face. Then she laughed silently and mirthlessly at herself. It must seem a little strange to see a girl of her type come alone to such a club.

She ordered a lobster salad. When the waiter had gone she sat staring fixedly at the table. One moment she wanted immediately to leave the club and never, never set foot in it again. The next, to rush towards the orchestra and force Ray to notice her—just as she had forced him to notice her that first night on board the Venduea. She fidgeted with a knife, spinning it around in the floor, when she began nervously to crumble her role and unconsciously to frown.

"I hear the saxophonist in your jazz band is quite a composer," she remarked presently as the waiter swept the crumbs away with a napkin.

"Madame, 'e's wonderful!" The man was all enthusiasm. "Ze patrons adore him. 'E make ze music so they zey cannot help but dance. Zum night, you should hear ze applause!"

Barbara was turned unaccountably interested in her plate. She kept her face lowered towards it, conscious that she had flushed a bright scarlet. Absurd—but at the man's words she had been aware of a sensation that she might have described as pride.

The manager was announcing Miss Rita Gilmore. As Barbara heard that name she seemed to glow all over. She sat motionless as the room darkened, her eyes fixed to where a changing spotlight made a colored ribbon from the platform across the dancing floor.

Down that pathway of light came Rita, her personality compelling instant attention, her beauty catching every eye.

Barbara, seeing her at close range, sat amazed.

Certainly there was not the type of girl she had expected! She had thought to find her hard of face. But there could be no denying the fresh, sweet quality, the look that shone in Rita's countenance. Barbara, watching her through her song and dance, found it impossible to believe her bad. It was reluctantly brought home to her that this girl might be sincerely in love with Ray.

But, even granting that, why had Ray turned from her, Barbara, to this singer? She puzzled over it, as, miserably, she tried to swallow her salad. In the end it was the waiter who unconsciously gave her the key to the puzzle.

She had remarked to him casually, as he refilled her glass with iced water: "That girl sings and dances exceptionally well."

"But, yes," he assured her. "Miss Gilmore is ze finished article. It is she who made us songs of Mr. Lowther, our saxophonist, so popular. She sings them, often."

So that was it. Barbara almost choked over a mouthful of lobster. A mutual interest had brought them together. It hurt her, that.

Barbara comes to a reluctant conclusion in tomorrow's chapter.

MOTOR BUSES PLAY LEADING PART IN TRANSPORT FIELD

Carry More Than 1,900,000 Passengers During 1929

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1929, by Com. Press

New York—More than 1,900,000,000 passengers will have been carried in the year by motor buses in the United States before 1929 comes to an end. Preliminary figures now available indicate that this total is a conservative estimate. So wide has been the expansion of passenger and freight bus lines throughout the country that the greatest problem of the industry today is the question of interstate regulation of motor vehicle transportation.

There are now approximately 190,000 buses in operation, of which about 40,000 are used in carrying children to and from schools. The common carrier buses which account for about 48,000 vehicles, transported more than 1,600,000,000 passengers. More Americans are riding than ever before and the gain is largely in the motor transport field. The street railway carriers have carried approximately 15,500,000,000 passengers this year, and this includes those who rode in buses operated by the traction companies. But this total is a drop from 1928 and shows only nominal gains over the number carried 10 years ago. The number of passengers carried by the steam roads also has been almost stationary. The increase in travel has been captured to a large extent by the automobile, operated either privately or as a common carrier.

BUS CAPITAL LARGER
Capital invested in bus lines has shown a steady growth from $258,000,000 in 1925 to approximately $375,000,000 in 1929. In the same period gross revenues of the common carrier buses rose from $185,000,000 to about $480,000,000. The electric railroads have combined bus service with electric car service in hundreds of communities but the outlook for the traction is still largely dependent on ability to raise sufficient funds for expansion and improvements. The electric railway companies, however, expect to spend fully $149,000,000 in improvements and betterments in 1930.

The growth of the taxicab habit has been as rapid in the urban field as has bus transportation in suburban traffic. The taxicab has become an integral part of the transportation system of every city. It started in the luxury class but has progressed to use as general conveyance. This has been accomplished by improvement of vehicles and service and lowering of prices.

When the first electric cars were in their glory, there was one taxicab to every 1,500,000 inhabitants. Today there is a taxi for every 1,300 persons in the United States. No definite figures exist as to the mileage traveled by taxicabs but the drivers in large cities count on covering something like 1,000 miles a week and each cab is usually used by two drivers, one on day shift and one on night. One company operated a fleet of 2,600 taxicabs covering 40,27,682 miles in the first half of 1929 and carried 16,100,647 passengers.

This company operated in 4 cities and now has fleets totaling 5,150 cabs. It started in 1915 with 31 cabs, 51 drivers and one garage. This will give some idea of the growth of the taxicab business.

Fleets of cabs now are being operated in connection with airplane companies, carrying passengers to and from landing fields. In connection with railroads and in connection with elevated and street car lines. In addition thousands of independent operators own and drive their own cabs. It is roughly estimated that there are more than 75,000 cabs in the country. In this city there are more than 22,000 cabs licensed to operate. These cabs will take in, it is estimated, about $115,000,000 this year. Total receipts for the country are conservatively placed at $400,000,000.

Back of all improvement in bus and cab revenues is the basic factor of better roads and paved streets.

clause will be in a position to determine what profits above a fair return are being made; and if the consolidation plan brings about large returns which may be recaptured, there will undoubtedly be a demand for a revision of freight rates downward.

PROTEST WEAK ROADS

The task of the commission, however, heretofore has been to adjust rates so that weak roads would not suffer. Now with a consolidation plan it is assumed that the weak roads will be joined with the stronger roads into 21 major systems in the United States and Canada. One of the most interesting comments comes from Commissioner Eastman, who states that while he does not approve of the plan in certain respects he does concur in it "because it has many good features, because it is necessary under the plan to adopt some plan, and because it is not very important after all whether or not it is the best plan that could be devised," and because it may be modified at any time hereafter full hearings have been held upon it.

Mr. Eastman's viewpoint is that there is nothing compulsory about the plan and that carriers have to decide for themselves whether they will apply for authority to carry out the consolidations. Mr. Eastman holds the view that the present plan is really tentative and that everything finally must be "in the public interest" before it takes effect. This means that every application to abide by the plan must be approved by a majority of the members of the commission.

"The reasons for caution," says Mr. Eastman "are greatly augmented by the fact that we are now dealing with a general railroad situation which in many respects is more satisfactory than any which has been experienced in the past. There may be ground for dissatisfaction in the general level of the rates but it is not seriously claimed that extensive consolidations will in themselves make possible substantial reductions in rates even if there be eliminated from consideration what may be the effect of the supreme court decision as to valuations. In the O'Fallon case."

Declaring that some of the weaker roads have grown stronger since 1920, Mr. Eastman argues that "there is no wisdom in experimenting with a reasonably satisfactory situation by radical attempts to promote consolidations out of hand on a grandiose scale and that there is on the contrary every reason for proceeding cautiously and conservatively."

This is taken to mean that the commission itself is not ready to rush pell-mell into the consolidation program but that it is complying with the law in furnishing a plan for consideration and that the railroads themselves and their stockholders will have to decide how far their wish to go in bringing the lines into 21 major systems.

HILLSDALE SCHOOL MAKES BEST RECORD IN HEALTH CONTEST

Tops All Other Rural Groups
by Scoring 190 Points in November

The Hillsdale rural school, town of Center, which made a record of 190 points, topped the health contest for November among Outagamie county rural schools, according to the report from Miss Marie Klein, county nurse. Miss Mendenhall is teacher of this school.

Two schools, High Ridge of the town of Greenville, and Maple Leaf of the town of Liberty, were tied for second place with 184 points each. Miss Marie Trammel is teacher of the first school and Miss Ruth Cousins is teacher of the second.

The contest was started last September and winners will be given special awards at the close of school next June. The students receive points for keeping clean; observing health habits in the home and the school; keeping the school and their persons clean; and observing other rules of the contest. A daily record on the health activities is kept by each school and these are sent to Miss Klein at the end of each month.

MAKE GOOD PROGRESS IN CHAMBER DRIVE

Secure Memberships From Many State Associations,
Secretary Says

Madison—Good progress is being made in the membership work of the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, according to E. H. Krueger, general secretary. Mr. Krueger said that much favorable public attention was attracted to the aims and purposes of the organization through publicity given its recent annual meeting by the press of Wisconsin. In addition to a large number of individual members, several important organization memberships have been approved since the annual meeting. Among these were the Ashland, Delavan and River Falls chambers of commerce, the Wisconsin Association of Real Estate Boards, the Wisconsin State Hotel association, the Wisconsin Retail Clothiers and Fur-nishers association and the Outdoor Advertising Association of Wisconsin.

"We invite trade and commercial associations on our membership roll not so much from the standpoint of revenue as the added power and influence they will bring," said Mr. Krueger. "To encourage affiliation we have provided a membership charge for organizations of only five cents per member, with a minimum annual fee of $25 for any organization. We already have a fine list of municipal associations of commerce and trade groups and we are planning a special effort to encourage more of these memberships."

OLD LIGHT POLES ARE UTILIZED ON STREETS

Four of the light poles removed from College-ave will be placed at the entrance of the new Alexander gymnasium, and two will be installed at the top of the stairs leading from S. Occlus-st to the Vocational school, according to Mayor A. C. Rule. It is possible that some of them may be used in the city parks next summer, but for the present the majority of poles will be stored in the city yards.

An attempt was made to sell the poles to the city of Milwaukee, where the same type of pole is used, but because they have experienced the same difficulty with the underground transformer characteristic of the old system, the sale could not be made. The poles will be sold for $15 a piece.

WE LIKE THAT!

London—Sir Thomas Beecham, in a recent statement, has put a lot of people in the "not-average-intelligence" class. "The 'tal'ies," he says, in commenting on the newest movies, "are one of the most monstrous inventions of this or any other age. The cinemas are for people of very average intelligence and the talkies suit that class of community. But they are an insult to any kind of intelligence or taste."
